Administration Shocked By Defeat On Wage Rate In Senate

Work Relief Program Faces Fresh Attacks

President Roosevelt Suffers Stunning Defeat On Prevailing Wage Issue

VOTE OF SENATE FOR WAGE 44 TO 43

Many Rumors On Capitol Hill Following Unexpected Vote

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The administration's plan for a $4,880,000,000 work relief program faced fresh attacks in the senate today after President Roosevelt's stunning defeat on the prevailing wage issue.

The leaders were amazed by the senate's 44 to 43 vote, ordering the government to pay prevailing wage rates on all relief projects, even if monthly wages are held to a $50 average. They were hopeful the house would reject the provision and that it ultimately would be left out of the bill.

Many Rumors Afloat

Rumors flooded Capitol Hill, one intimated the president would abandon the whole work relief program and accept continuation of direct relief for another year, while another declared the senate would strike out the whole work relief program and continue the "dole." Two such amendments are pending. One by Senator Byrd (D) of Virginia would limit the fund to $1,880,000,000, all of it to be spent on direct relief. Another by Senator Adams (D) of Colorado, in which Shovelling snow this morning was a man sized job. The snow was six or seven inches deep on most walks, and even where the walks had been cleared last night, there was a new accumulation of several inches.

The man who was first out on his street this morning, had a lot of ploughing through deep snow to do. Breaking a track this morning was something of a task.

And while we are talking about shovelling snow off the walks, think of the janitors at Ben Franklin high. They must have half a mile of walks to clear, with Cunningham avenue, Lutton street and DuShane street as well as the walks on school property to be cleared.

Use of the street cars has shown a considerable increase in the past week or so, due to weather conditions. Even some of those hardy individuals who walk to and from work, were willing to take a car this morning.

Believe Girls' Death Leap Due To Grief

By HARRY K. REYNOLDS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Scotland Yard investigators were convinced today that shock and grief over the death of their royal air force officer sweethearts led Jane and Elizabeth Du Bois to find death in the same way, from the air, but authorities indicated that only the suicide notes they left could throw full light on the tragedy.

While their stricken father, Coert Du Bois, American consul general at Naples, and their mother were on their way from Italy, authorities interviewed scores of acquaintances of the girls and the two dashing airmen with whom they were said to have had an "understanding," in preparation for the inquest Monday.

Stress was laid on the fact that Flight-Lieut. Henry L. Beatty, to whom Elizabeth, 23, was attached, and Flying Officer John Alexander Forbes, fiance of Jane, 20, crashed into a Sicilian hillside and were killed with seven companions only

Big Truck In Odd Accident On Jefferson St.

Piles Up In The Air After Backward Skid Down Hill

MISHAP NEAR GRANT STREET

One of the oddest motor truck accidents in recent years occurred at 4:30 a. m. today at North Jefferson and Grant street as the result of the slippery condition of the North Jefferson street hill. The front part of the truck jacknifed, body fell over on its side and the front section which supported the cab climbed on top of the body presenting the figure "7". The driver of the truck was Ben White, formerly of Randolph street, who was hauling freight from Pittsburgh to Sharon.

State Covered By Mantle Of Snow

Snow Measures From One To Six Inches, Temperature In Low Thirties

(International News Service)

Legendary stories of the hardships suffered by George Washington and his army on the snow-swept plains of Valley Forge were revived on the anniversary of his birth today when a mantle of white covered Pennsylvania.

Although below zero in the colder areas ,the mercury in the majority of places throughout the state hung in the thirties. But snow was general, ranging from depths of one inch in metropolitan districts to several inches in outlying regions and mountain areas.

In western and central Pennsylvania, the fall was expected to continue throughout the day while rain was anticipated late today or tonight in the east.

Because of the slippery condition of highways, travel was extremely hazardous. Highway crews moved into action while cities put additional men to work clearing streets in congested business districts.

NIGHT SCHOOLS AND ORCHESTRA WILL CONTINUE

Orders Received To Resume R. W. D. Projects Recently Ordered Halted

Authority was received today by Acting RWD Administrator W. Leslie Wilson to resume the educational and art projects abandoned several days ago. This authority was received in a telegraphic order.

The projects under this heading are the night school classes and the Civic Orchestra. Since the original order the teachers of the night school classes have been functioning without pay.

Civic Orchestra Pleases Crowd

Excellent Program Is Given In First Public Appearance

OTHER FEATURES ADD TO PROGRAM

Senior high school auditorium was filled to capacity Thursday evening when the Civic orchestra gave its first public concert. Not only filled but there were a number standing in the rear of the hall.

While the personnel of the orchestra indicated a concert of merit, the audience was delighted beyond expectation with the program. Director Harry Hammond and Conductor J. V. Sypher had arranged a program of classics, ballads and jazz numbers and the result was a thoroughly enjoyable evening of music. From the opening number, "Marching Along Together," to the closing number, the "Star Spangled Banner" the audience applauded the musicians to the echo and after the splendid success of the evening it is likely that a repeat concert will be held in the near future.

Miss Nellie Brady appeared on the program with two vocal solos. Using a microphone Miss Brady built up the illusion that the auditorium was a broadcasting studio. Another special feature was an adagio dance by Miss Catherine Hartsuff and Stephen Mazur. It was given a rousing hand, as were the solos by Miss Brady.

The program was all too short for the audience. They voiced their appreciation in applause and demonstrated that a civic orchestra in New Castle is something that has been needed for a long time.

Mr. Sypher conducted part of the program and Harry Hammond the other part.

Three S. O. S. Calls By Freight Ships

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—S O S calls from three Italian freighters, flashed out of the Atlantic today within three hours of each other, the radiomarine corporation reported.

The most seriously affected by storm swept seas was the S. S. Taide whose entire crew was taken aboard the S. S. Gallea, a later message said. The cause of the trouble was not known.

The S. S. Juventus reported one man swept overboard, but her message gave no further details of her difficulty.

The freighter Caterina Madre radioed she had lost her propeller and asked that a salvage tug be sent to her assistance.

U. S. Officials Seize 50,000 Lottery Books

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—Under heavy guard in the customs house here today lay 50,000 lottery books, seized on a French freighter in the Delaware river.

Refusing to divulge the name of the raided vessel customs officials said the books, whose sale value is $1,500,000, were consigned to Samuel Barrow of Trenton, N. J. A warrant for Barrow's arrest was obtained by customs agents and sent to federal authorities at Trenton.

The lottery books, each containing 12 tickets on a sweepstakes scheduled to be run in France in June, were found hidden in two huge bales labelled "old rags" which formed part of the French freighter's cargo.

The officers and crew of the ship were absolved of all blame by customs officials who said the men on board were unaware of the fact they were transporting the lottery tickets.

At the Chestnut street wharf where the cargo was unloaded agents were posted to arrest any person calling to claim the "old rags".

CITY BATTLES HEAVY SNOW

Traffic Handicapped On Hills Despite Work Of Street Department

King Snow got in his work last night and as a result automobile traffic on the various hills of the city was tied up through the fact that ashes which were placed by the department of street employes were covered over almost as soon as the ashes were scattered on the cartways. By morning the ashes had been ground deep into the snow and the hills again were icy.

The street department put as many men as they could round up to work last night and they worked until early this morning.

The work was continued this morning and four city trucks continued to place ashes in dangerous sections.

Meanwhile seven RWD trucks and RWD employes cleaned snow from the downtown streets so traffic conditions could be improved in the business lanes.

Automobiles which wore chains had considerable advantage over the machines which had no chains. The latter cars in some instances could not negotiate hills and were parked last night and removed by owners this morning.

PAWEE, Okla.,—Feb. 22.—An old, square stone house, is Pawee's jail. There, on the second floor, 19-year-old Phil Kennamer sat in a cell today smoking a cigaret, calm, dry-eyed, brave.

Even as last night when he stood and heard read a verdict which found him guilty of manslaughter in the first degree for the killing of John Gorrell, he was cool and collected, the same Phil who admitted he pumped two bullets into the brain of the Kansas City dental college student and left him dead in his automobile.

Degrees Will Be Presented At Cathedral

Legion Of Honor Group Will present Gripping World War Drama This Evening

EXPECT HUGE THRONG AT EVENT

Final rehearsals were held last evening by the members of the Legion of Honor, for the degrees which they will present to members of the Valley of New Castle Consistory and visitors from other Consistories in Pennsylvania and Ohio at The Cathedral this evening at 8 o'clock.

These degrees, the 31st and 32nd, have been changed from a medieval setting to one laid in the World War, and will be given exactly as they are presented by another consistory outside the Masonic Jurisdiction of the United States of America.

A soul-gripping drama has been woven about an authentic instance which occurred during the World War.

This may be the only time that these degrees will be presented for the membership of the Valley of New Castle, and for this reason, a large attendance of the membership is expected.

Invitations have been extended to the officers and members of other consistories in the district to be present on this occasion, and a large attendance is anticipated.

Admission is to members only, who will be admitted by their patent, unless known to officers of the Valley of New Castle Consistory.

Heaviest Snow Of Year Today

Over Five Inches Of Snow Reported By Government Station This Morning

ROADS CLEARED BY SNOW PLOWS

New Castle and Lawrence county residents started digging out from under the second heavy snowfall of the year this morning, almost six inches of the beautiful having fallen at 9 o'clock, the United States Weather Observing Station reported, the heaviest of the winter.

The snow, which started falling Thursday afternoon, was a heavy one, being almost at the point of turning into rain, and hence packed down harder than the snow which fell on February 5. Figures show that actually more than an inch more snow fell, but the depth seemed about the same.

Work of snow removal was started this morning by the city, several trucks being engaged in hauling away the snow from Washington street, just after daybreak.

State Highway Superintendent H. W. Lightner started nine snowplows, and nine ashing trucks, with a force of men out onto the highway this morning, to clear them for traffic and make them safe for motor travel. It was reported that the depth of the snow in the rural sections ranged from six to eight inches in depth.

Post Fails In Effort To Make Record Flight

Leaves California On Proposed Stratosphere Flight To New York

MESSAGE SAYS HE WAS FORCED DOWN

Pilot Uninjured—Plane Less Than 100 Miles From Starting Point

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

UNION AIR TERMINAL, BURBANK, Feb. 22.—The attempt of Wiley Post, famed round-the-world flier, to make an eight-hour stratosphere flight from Los Angeles to New York ended today within 100 miles of his starting point.

Word was received by the Lockheed factory here that Post was down at Muroc Dry Lake, Cal., at 11:40 a. m. (E. S. T.) The report said Post was uninjured but did not give the reason for his landing.

"Am down. No damage except bent propellor. You can land along side with ease," was the message received at the Lockheed factory from Post.

A plane piloted by Billy Parker carrying mechanics left shortly after the report was received to render aid to Post.

Muroc Dry Lake is a popular testing ground for racing automobiles and it was believed that Post had selected its smooth sandy surface for a landing on his skids. He had dropped landing gear in starting his flight.

Post left at 9:07 a. m. (E. S. T.) and the telegram was filed two hours and 33 minutes later but it was believed that because of the short distance traversed, Post had probably made his landing considerably earlier than 11:40 a. m.

Union Air Terminal, Burbank, Cal., Feb. 22.—Wiley Post, attempting a stratosphere flight to New York in between seven and eight hours, hopped off from the Union Air Terminal at 9:07 a. m. (E. S. T.) today in his plane the "Winnie Mae."

Before leaving the field Post said he would head directly for New York, flying at an altitude of between 30,000 and 35,000 feet.

Babe Ruth's Trip One Of Causes

Sponsoring Of Appearance Of American Stars Blamed For Attack

FEAR OUTBREAK MAY BE RESULT

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKIO, Feb. 22.—The knifing by another editor of Matsutaro Shoriki, famous publisher of the newspaper Yomiuri, partially because he sponsored the barnstorming trip of Babe Ruth and other major league ball players in Japan, may be the spark that will set off another explosion of reactionary terrorism, it was feared in progressive circles today.

Katsusuke Nagasaki, former policeman and now editor of a right wing magazine, attacked Shoriki with a dagger as the publisher stepped from his automobile, and cut his throat.

In Serious Condition

Shoriki was reported in a serious condition.

As soon as word of the attack spread through the metropolis, police guards at the homes of prominent members of the diet who have been assailing the ultra-conservative peerage and army elements, were strengthened.

Nagasaki, who is 30 years old, confessed that he sought to kill Shoriki because of his "disloyal and frivolous" importation of the American baseball team "when the country was plunged in a crisis," and because Yomiuri Shimbun had editorially supported the progressive constitutionalists.

Police are also guarding the hospital to which Shoriki was taken, and its identity is being kept secret, because it is feared another reactionary would try to finish the murder in which Nagasaki failed.

in prison. Judge Thurman Hurst, who presided at the boy's trial, will pass sentence.

The romantic poseur, who boasted of leading revolutions in Cuba and China, planned a newspaper of his own and discussed airplane flights to the moon, was without the soulful glances of the girl he said he loved so madly when he heard the jury's verdict. Virginia Wilcox, beautiful 19-year-old daughter of a Tulsa oil multi-millionaire, was not in the courtroom.

The girl, for whose love Phil said he killed Gorrell because the dental student planned to kidnap her, was at a motion picture show in Tulsa as Phil heard the guilty decision.

Faces Jury

So the boy defendant faced the twelve farmers and outdoor workers without Virginia. His father sat beside him and his sister was nearby. None of Tulsa's aristocratic, fast living young set of which Phil was a member was in the courtroom.

As the jurors filed in, young Phil sat straight in his seat. During the trial he had half-slouched in his chair. Last night his sensitive face was pale, almost yellow under the glare of the courtroom lights.

"Guilty of manslaughter in the first degree," chanted the voice of the woman clerk of the court.

Phil's arm and hand remained motionless. His white face flushed ever so slightly, then he turned, said something inaudible to his gray-haired father and finally shook hands with his sister, Opal. All were dry-eyed.

Phil's old nonchalance and smile were gone, but as they led the boy away the packed courtroom echoed in a dozen whispers:

"He took it like a man."

Appeal will be probably be taken in the case unless an extremely light sentence is imposed by Judge Hurst.

The preying thought their friendship might have contributed to the officers' death possibly contributed to their suicide decision, it was felt.

Dispatches from America saying that Jane suffered from chronic asthma for ten years and was pessimistic about recovery indicated another possible contributory factor.

This report supported a new theory that Jane was the prime mover in the suicide pact that led them to charter an entire Paris airplane, inducing the pilot to cut off his view of the cabin, and leap out 4,000 feet over Essen county.

TRUCKERS WORK OUT DELINQUENT TAXES

When Post reaches Floyd Bennett Field in New York he will attempt to land on a skid which has been attached to the under part of the fuselage of his plane.

Post said, just before he stepped into the plane, clad in his special stratosphere suit and helmet that he would follow the so-called Great Circle Route to New York. This would tak him over Pueblo, Colo., approximately 100 miles south of Chicago, and then over Allentown, Pa.

WORK RELIEF PROGRAM FACES FRESH ATTACKS

Senator Carter Glass (D) of Virginia concurred, would reduce the fund to $2,880,000,000 and limit its use to direct relief.

Administration leaders may be able to move for reconsideration of the wage vote and win on another vote.

May Reconsider

The wage amendment, sponsored by Senator McCarran (D) of Nevada, was endorsed by the American Federation of Labor which ranked the senate vote on a par with the famous Judge John J. Parker case. Incidentally, 27 out of the 39 senators who voted against labor on the Parker case, were defeated for re-election.

The president may get some senator, who favored the amendment, to move reconsideration. This senator would have to face the concentrated wrath of organized labor for switching his vote on so important an issue. Even then, the president might lose again as two absentee senators—Thomas (D) of Oklahoma, and Smith (D) of South Carolina—were reported favorable to the amendment.

House With President

Washington, Feb. 22—A prediction that the house will stand by President Roosevelt in resisting the McCarran wage amendment placed in the $4,880,000,000 work-relief bill by the senate was made today by Speaker Byrns.

"The house stood by the president when it was before us," he said.

"The prevailing wage amendment will destroy the funamental idea of getting men back into private industry as quickly as possible. Men won't go back into private industry if they can get as much or more on government jobs."

Chairman Buchanan (D) of Texas, of the house appropriations committee, declared the McCarran amendment would make impossible letting of private contracts for public works.

"If a contractor has to take on new men after two or three days work, he cannot figure costs and there can be no efficiency," Buchanan said.

BIG TRUCK IN ODD ACCIDENT ON JEFFERSON ST.

intersection and had climbed about 100 yards up the hill when his truck started to slide backward. It jackknifed and in a moment the body of the truck turned on its side and the front part of the vehicle nosed upward and rested on top of the body. White climbed down. His wrist was slightly hurt, but he was not otherwise injured, reports state.

The other trucks parked along the east curb on North Jefferson street along the Dana property rather than take a chance of attempting to climb the hill which was slippery.

A dozen automobiles were parked in that section last night by drivers who refused to take a chance on skidding backward and early this morning, Chief of police John F. Haven, Detectives Chief W. G. McMullen and a Motorcycle Patrolman Ray Showalter went to the scene. It required the services of all three to keep traffic from congesting at the point. Time and again crashes seemed probable cars which skidded down the hill and machines attempting to get a "hold." so they could ascend the hill.

Bell Telephone company sent employes and equipment to the scene of the accident later in the morning and had no difficulty in lowering the front end of the truck and turning the body over on its wheels and at 11:15 a. m. White got into the cab and drove on its way.

The only damage to the truck was the caving in of the rear of the cab.

LAMSON DENIES ANY ROMANCE IN REGARD TO NURSE

ficult task of picking a jury and in criticism of the prosecution's mention of the name of the girl, former nursemaid in the Lamson Stanford campus bungalow where the body of Mrs. Lamson was found Memorial Day, 1933

Lamson Irked

Lamson was ired, claiming it is absolutely ridiculous even to think the girl was anything in my household except a nurse for Baby Allen." However," he added, "She was a good nursemaid and I feel very sorry she was unfortunate enough to be entangled in this affair."

At adjournment there were eight men and four women in the jury box and each side had used four peremptory challenges of the twenty allowed both state and defense.

In other words, Congress thinks the President shouldn't be trusted with great powers when Congressmen are available.

Never Treat A Cough Lightly

It Might Be Dangerous

Never send a boy to do a man's work. That's why we say to you, go today to Eckerd's Drug Store and get a bottle of that famous, smooth, creamy, creosoted Emulsion known to pharmacists as Bronchuline Emulsion. It's a medicine for grown-ups for coughs that hang on and never seem to let go. No sweet syrupy concoction that simply plays with a cough—no dope or habit-forming drugs—it quickly strikes at the source of the trouble. Get a bottle and enjoy a good night's rest.

The evening was climaxed when the honored one was presented with a collection of lovely gifts.

Hi Score Club

George Washington decorations, in honor of his birthday which is being commemorated today, lent attractiveness to the dainty repast which Mrs. Harry Ray served to Hi Score members, Thursday evening, at her home on North Mercer street, following a period of games.

The prizes were captured by Miss Catherine Preisel and Mrs. C. Preisel and the hostess was assisted in serving by her mother. Miss Hazel Monroe asked the club to her North street home, in a fortnight.

G. H. M. Class

Mrs. C. B. Wingerd, Miss Laura Stevenson and Miss Janet Pattison were visitors at the meeting of the G. H. M. class of the Central Presbyterian church Thursday evening, in the home of Mrs. George McClelland of Pine street. Joint hostesses were Mrs. John Robinson and Mrs. Edward Winters. Fourteen members were present besides the guests.

The business session was followed with the customary program and lunch was served, which was dainty appointed in keeping with Washington's birthday.

CLAMPING DOWN ON PAROLES

NOTHING but commendation should follow the announced policy of the State Pardon Board and Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti concerning paroles for prisoners. The policy is to be a more rigid examination of recommendations of penitentiary trustees for paroles, and where there is a doubt the "doubt should be resolved in favor of society."

In past years many paroles for prisoners in state institutions have been little short of a disgrace. There comes to mind the case of a woman convicted of murder in Lawrence county. She was sent to prison for a long term and at the end of one year was paroled. This without the knowledge or consent of the Lawrence county courts or the office of the district attorney.

There is another case of a bank robber from this county sentenced to fifteen years who was paroled after less than a third of his sentence was served. Inside of a year he was in the Ohio state penitentiary for the same crime.

Paroles have been altogether too easy in Pennsylvania. If men and women insist upon robbing and murdering then the citizens of the state should insist that they be sentenced long enough that society will not be bothered with them for some time.

In the past, penitentiary trustees have over ridden the will of juries and courts in a maudlin effort to reform criminals. Perhaps a small percentage of them were reformed but the statistics show that most of them were soon back at their nefarious trade.

When criminals learn that their sentence is going to stick, they may be a trifle more wary about committing crime. If the present pardon board follows its public announcement it will deserve the gratitude of law abiding people.

OPERATIONS AS PRIZES

Perhaps that offer by a Los Angeles hospital of certain operations as door prizes at its forthcoming benefit dance is based on sound economics. The hospital is reported as having, in prospect and retrospect, more operative engagements than cash, so that a $200 appendicitis operation might answer, as the main door prize, a number of delicate financial questions. It conforms to the present-day bargaining or barter idea gathering adherents among some of our best economists.

The second door prize is to be complete maternity service, in itself a positive good, but scarcely useful, say, to a confirmed bachelor. The prizes are, however, transferable, so that a benedict friend of that bachelor might get the latter's ticket and make good use of it when expecting a happy event. What a start in life for the lucky baby who first sees the light of day as a door prize!

THE RIGHT TO GLOWER

Regimentation has broken loose again in the administration, regimentation that is subtly infused with propaganda, and something ought to be done about it. For Secretary of Labor Perkins has issued an order that all departmental employees must greet each other "with a cheery good morning" at the start of the business day. It may not be a good morning; the department of labor workers may not feel cheery. No matter.

Suppose they do feel cheery! After receiving the hundredth ebullient greeting, the hundredth glint of teeth from the hundredth pair of forcedly smiling lips, what will the cumulative effect be if not boredom verging on a frenzy of resentment? Pretty soon the employees will compete to see who reaches the office last, to avoid exchanging cheery salutations with each incoming individual.

What this country needs is recognition of the individual's right to feel and look low, depressed and uncommunicative of a given morning. And maybe this administration can stand just a bit less of professional cheerio.

PITY THE BACHELOR

Consider the bachelor, he marries not, neither does he save his money by single blessedness. Not only is he deprived of exemptions on federal and state income tax assessments that are regularly granted to married men, but now a member of the state legislature of North Dakota has proposed a special tax upon him. His excuse is that a person should be prepared to pay a premium for his freedom of marital ties, a sort of privilege tax for walking through life alone.

The argument is highly debatable. On the other hand it might be contended that a legislature composed entirely or mostly of men should establish a special reward for bachelors for maintaining their independence of all-encroaching Female and thus upholding the disappearing prestige of the Male.

In a way the issue turns on whether most men remain bachelors by choice or through force of circumstances. Information on this point is often unreliable, since pride tends to prevent a man from admitting that no woman for whom he cared would have him for a husband or that other conditions interfered with his marital plans, including that fatal delay which frequently renders a man incapable of making the necessary adjustments.

But the assumption that all bachelors have deliberately elected to follow such a profession or that they really esteem it a privilege is obviously untenable. Bachelor taxes may be in order in Italy, where the dictator is bent upon promoting the largest possible population, but even for revenue a democratic legislature ought not to kick a man when he is down.

BILLIONS FOR RELIEF

The $4,000,000,000 work relief budget of the administration is a challenge to the whole nation.

Rather than argue about the use to which this huge sum of money is to be put, although there is room for argument, it would be better to devote time to planning ways of making a similar appropriation unnecessary next year.

There is room here for constructive planning—and doing—not only by the administration, but also by the Republican party and by business interests.

This fund not only measures the failure of the Roosevelt administration to bring recovery, it also measures the failure of private capital to provide employment. Instead of arguing exclusively about its employment, it would be well to plan for its elimination in the next budget.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

I. I. I.

I'm a sleepy head....I didn't used to be.

So far, I've remembered every time to write "1935".....That never happened before.

When I was about 17 years old, I played the part of a Frenchman in one of Pinero's comedies, "The Amazons." The town newspaper said I was very good, and I thought so myself....Youth does have fun.

Whatever has become of all that poetry I memorized in the long ago? ....Now I can't remember two consecutive lines....Will it come forth some day when I am coming out from the ether, or his it gone for good?

I'm never going to be bald.

I like to look down from high mountains....But I don't like to climb high mountains.

I wish I could ski.

I don't know anything about rearing children....Twelve years ago, when we didn't have any. I know all about the subject....What an imposing facade of wisdom parents raise before their youngsters! And how often children peek behind the facade to see what's holding it up!

When I was being taught my manners I was told it was impolite to talk about food at table....Now I think it is very good manners, indeed, to talk about your food, if you like it.

Men laugh at women's styles.... I remember when all the young bloods in our town wore their hair pompodour style. Mine looked like a military brush stuck on the front of my head.

I suppose that with the years one DOES acquire a little sense.... I used to sign my name with an "E" in front—like "E. Julius Caesar." (I'm not blushing! It's rather warm in here, don't you think?)

HOW MUCH PLEASURE DO YOU DERIVE FROM YOUR HOLIDAYS

Have you reached a point in life where you get little thrill out of holidays which should interest you?

You cannot expect to have the enthusiasm of childhood, but a holiday should make you more buoyant and happy.

Your children are grown to adulthood and are away from your home.

Your financial condition forbids the giving of remembrances.

Very likely there is a hard struggle to provide the necessities of life.

Sorrow may have come into your life.

But notwithstanding misfortunes, there should be something about a holiday to bring at least a little joy into your life.

Benevolent persons and societies and organizations endeavor to provide some cheer for those who are unable to procure it for themselves.

In this way many needy ones are remembered.

Isn't there something you can do for one worse off than you are?

You have not made it a habit to help others at such times.

No matter how small your contribution, it should bring your happiness.

Try it and be convinced.

WASHINGTON

When it is easier to desert
And every voice is counseling "cease";
When one is sick of being hurt
And giving up will purchase peace;

When one can fling the cause away
And live at ease a few brief years,
But chooses on the field to stay
Till victory or death appears;

When principle is more than life
And freedom more than food or fire
Or cold or hunger, pain or strife
Or any personal desire;

When one at Valley Forge will stay
Determined still to carry on,
Devoted to the cause, that day
Will see a second Washington.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight, 5:43. Sun rises tomorrow, 6:43.

You may have noticed that meat prices have been soaring recently. This is partly because farmers are getting paid for raising no hogs. It wouldn't be so bad if our own Pennsylvania farmers were getting their share of the no hog money, but the official records show that the great bulk of the money paid out by people of our own state is going to the no hog raisers of the western states. We don't want to appear selfish but we just can't see any fairness about it.

Convict—I'm in here fer havin' five wives.

You may have noticed that when anybody is laid off from a relief project, the white collar class are generally the first to get it in the neck. Some people seem to think that because a man wears a white collar he can fill his stomach with wind.

Heart disease does not always prove fatal. Some girls recover and marry another boy.

Some men may know a lot about girls, but to most of them, a girl's heart is as big a mystery as what's under the hood of their car.

Clarence Potampa, of Portland, Ore., dislocated his jaw while yawning, and it took doctors three hours to reset it. Don't try pronouncing his name, or you may dislocate yours.

Looking over the numerous applications for divorce which are being made might lead one to the belief that when a couple's love grows cold they make it hot for each other.

NEW COOKING HINT

Husband:— "This steak tastes queer."

Wife:—"I can't understand it, dear. I did burn it a little, but I rubbed vaseline on it right away."

The doctor needs an X-ray to see through a man, but the average wife can see through her husband without even squinting.

University of Pennsylvania students were said to have brought "good luck" charms to recent examinations. Wonder how many of them were little ponies.

COMPLIMENTARY

"Do you think a genius makes a good husband?"

"Er, well, perhaps you had better ask my wife."

We get from people what we give We find in them what we bring. The changes are not changes in them so much as changes in ourselves.—Bruce Barton.

Pennsylvania legislators have proposed 1128 new laws to date. Yet with all this billing, no bill has been passed finally by both houses, placing it in a position for the governor's signature. He has signed but one piece of legislation—a joint resolution. Most of the bills which have been introduced will finally end in the waste paper basket, where they properly belong. Legislators want to introduce something or other just to get their names in the papers and make the people back home imagine they are big shots in place of popguns.

The female of the species is adjudged more deadly than the male over in Germany, where Hitler is now making war on the fair sex, two having been beheaded for plotting against the Nazis. That should make Adolph very popular with the females of Germany.

Amelia Earhart says home keeps women from a career. It may be so, Amelia, but we know women to whom home is the sweetest place on earth. GETTING ROPED IN

"I do eat. Where shall we go?"

It is a constant source of astonishment to hot-headed radicals that our country, possessing an extended franchise, should tolerate the government it has.

"Rastus," said the judge, "you are accused of disturbing the entire neighborhood on Tuesday night. what have you to say for yourself?"

"Well, suh, Jedge, it was this here way," said Rastus. "Me and Lucy had a argument. She called me a lazy loafah, an' I slap her down flat. Up she hops, an' smash a skillet on mah haid, and drop me flat. Den I riz up and welt her one wid a cha'r. An' den she done heave a hot teakettle at me, which sho' scald me considerable."

"I see," said the judge. "And then what happened?"

One of the first signs of spring, a flock of wild geese flying over the city this morning. Most of us have seen wild geese flying northward in the spring, but who can explain how the wild geese know that spring is coming. Might as well try to discover why the potatoes start to sprout along about this time of year, or why the housewife beings to "itch" for house-cleaning.

The younger generation doesn't seem to be happy unless it is going places it shouldn't go, and doing things it shouldn't do.

About the only excuse you need to get a divorce in some states is that you live in the state of matrimony.

Miracles do happen, even in this advanced age. A grandmother has been found in Tennessee who didn't take her first air ride on her 100th birthday, has no opinions on the younger generation, smokes her clay pipe regularly and needs glasses to read her newspaper. What a pleasure to reach the century mark and yet be perfectly normal.

MISTAKES OF MAN

"There are seven mistakes of life that many of us make," said a famous writer, and then he gave the following list:

1. The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others down.

2. The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.

3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves cannot accomplish it.

4. Refusing to set aside trivial preferences, in order that important things may be accomplished.

5. Neglecting development and refinement of the mind by not acquiring the habit of reading.

6. Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.

7. The failure to establish the habit of saving money.

Judging from the number of new cars which the auto manufacturers are said to be turning out they must be able to see something around the corner. Hope it's a man with a job

Many unpleasant situations in life could be avoided by making a detour now and then.

A husband, is one who stands by you through troubles you wouldn't have had if you hadn't have married him.

Here's a pointer for the 'coons down in Wayne and Perry townships. In Beaver county an organization known as the United Coon Hunters Association has been formed. The object is declared to be to seek animals for coon dinners and their furs. The association seems to be a little different from the usual club whose high aim is "to promote friendships and foster the higher education. "Here's hoping the club finds a coon that can lead the Republican party to victory at the next election.

The World At A Glance

Money Stabilization.
See Inflation Possible.
Wall Street Optimistic.

Central Press
New York Bureau
235 East 45th street
By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Now, since the gold decision is out of the way, we are told to look for world stabilization of currency.

The gold decision in itself means little to trade, except to remove uncertainty as to the value of money.

Since, however, the decision validates the Roosevelt devaluation of the dollar, the world now knows that the devalued dollar is THE dollar.

Thus, from that basis, there may be trading among nations for stabilized interchange value of currency.

Means of breaking down tariff barriers will have to follow, economists say.

Unless there is stabilized interchange value of currency, unless there is a breaking down of tariff barriers, the world might starve itself to death—unless actual barter were resorted to.

As it is, millions are jobless because of lack of trade—while surplus food and surplus manufactured products rot and rust.

INFLATION NEXT?

The more conservative financiers are getting their house into order for inflation.

They say the gold decision opens the door wide.

Furthermore, they believe the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, perhaps unintentionally will sway millions toward it.

Be that as it may, the conservative financiers are preparing to cash in on inflation, from all appearances.

They buy when values are down and sell when values are up—before the bubble bursts—and that is exactly what the average man, hard at his daily tasks, cannot well do.

OPTIMISTIC

Speaking of the stock market, the Wall Street Journal is optimistic.

Says this "Bible" of the Street:

"Gold clause decisions of the supreme court should go a long way towards clearing the path for resumption of activity in the new capital market. Much of a large volume of financing under consideration is for refunding purposes and pendency of the cases made consummation of such transactions impossible so long as prospective issuers lacked assurance that securities to be called for redemption could be paid off in currency."

Opening of the capital market, however, "will not be a quick development," the Wall Street Journal warns.

Incidentally, the Stock Exchange still is fighting the securities control law, saying it prevents necessary capital issues.

But the securities commission is more and more inclined to believe that the protests of the Stock Exchange are a smoke screen to hide refusal to "clean up" objectionable practices.

Through Richard Whitney, its president, the Stock Exchange virtually is dominated by the House of Morgan.

Independents in Wall Street, starving because of the Whitney administration's war with the government, are beginning to talk of a "house cleaning" among the officers of the exchange.

TELEPHONE

The senatorial - communications commission investigation into the American Telephone & Telegraph company will proceed very slowly.

Although the senate voted $750,000 for this investigation, largest initial sum ever voted by the senate for an investigation, fully a year and a half will be required to get at the substance.

Why?

The A. T. & T. has so rambled its subsidiaries to such an extent that countless trails. Experts confess they are confused by the tentacles of this octopus, largest corporation on earth—with more wealth than the majority of governments.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

CONFUSION WORSE CONFOUNDED

Confusion rules in the household of Vladislaw Markowitch, elderly wealthy farmer near Dreganowice, Poland.

A son and a grandson were born simultaneously in the old man's farm house. The midwife laid both in a cradle side by side, but neglected to place any marks of identification upon either.

Neither parents could identify their own child. Markowitch fond of both children, holds each upon his lap, wondering if he is rocking his own son or his grandson.

Today's Yesterdays—Feb. 22. 1631.—The first Thanksgiving Day.

Because of a scarcity of food, Feb. 22 was proclaimed as a fast day in Plymouth colony. The day before, a long-expected ship (the Lyon) came in, and the fast-day became one of Thanksgiving. Thereafter the festival was held annually on a variable date—in December, February, April or May.

A contribution of invited Amerindian guests at the initial feast was the first popcorn known to the colonists.

Feb. 22, 1797.—Karl Friedrich Hieronymous von Munchhausen died, aged 77.

He has the biggest reputation as a liar in history, yet there is no proof that he ever told a lie. Travel tales attributed to him were written by one Rudolph E. Raspe, a fugitive Hanoverian who was working in an English mine when he penned them.

The Raspe tales were published 12 years before Munchhausen's death and if the latter was displeased, there is no record of it.

We're still hearing from skeptics concerning this, with late letters coming from B. Williamnson, Winter Haven, Fla.; R. O. Schulze, San Antonio, Tex.; and J. A. Simpson, of Vice President John Garner's home town, Uvalde, Texas. Mr. Simpson thinkc we're wrong if we believe—

TUBERCULOSIS — DIAGNOSTIC AIDS

"The most powerful enemy among adolescent children is a germ only one-eight thousandth of an inch long. It is the rod-shaped microbe known as the tubercle bacillus. Its ability to slay lies in its power to conceal its deadly efforts from the casual observer that it wroughts much of its destruction before its presence is even suspected. The irony of this situation is that science is in a fine position to locate and rout this enemy long before it has done any real damage, if given a chance to do so," states Dr. Edith MacBride-Dexter, state secretary of health.

"Before the perfection of the X-ray a generation ago, a diagnosis of tuberculosis in a child was equivalent to signing its death warrant. The physician at that time to make a diagnosis, was compelled to rely chiefly upon symptoms and what he could detect by the stethoscope. The child that had a cough, a fever, a faulty digestion, and lost weight, all as a result of the tubercle germ, was already in an advanced stage, with the chances of a cure most remote indeed.

"Today it is possible to make a diagnosis shortly after the infection has occurred; and ths, long before any destruction of the lungs has taken place.

"For example, the Mantoux test determines whether or not a tuberculous infection is present. Again, the X-ray film accurately notes the condition found in the lungs.

"Fortunately for a promptly discovered infection in the adolescent

News Sidelights At State Capitol

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22.—The constitutional limitation that all taxes must be equal will be raised against the administration's graded chain store tax now before the house...Administration leaders expect the attack...In fact, they have even prepared their answer...The answer is that the tax is an excise license levy and not a tax on property.

In the West Virginia case, the United States supreme court ruled the graded tax on chain stores was legal...West Virginia's constitutional restriction on taxes is virtually the same as Pennsylvania's. ...The Earle administration bill starts with a $2 license fee for every store and ranges upward to a $250 fee for each store over 75.

Another constitutional argument developed over the administration bill removing the exemption from the gross receipts tax which has been enjoyed by municipally-owned plants...There is nothing in the constitution barring the state from taxing governments...The state's right to tax receipts of government-operated utilities has been through the courts...The courts ruled the tax could be so applied but with the right established, the state has never exercised it.

Employes of the milk control board had a few uneasy moments around payday...The change in administrations brought a change in the personnel of the board...But the senate did not act immediately upon Gov. George H. Earle's nominess and there was no one to sign payroll requisitions for the board... Governor Earle solved the problem by personally deputizing an aide to okay the payroll.

Bets are being placed on Capitol hill on whether a senate committee will be discharged during the current biennial session...Discharging senate committees just isn't done in the best of senatorial traditions... But it has been many a session since the upper chamber was as evenly divided politically as this year... Republicans on paper have only a six vote margin and the 31 G. O. P. members cannot be counted upon to vote as a bloc on almost any type of legislation.

The first discharge motion this session is scheduled for February 25 when Senator Leon C. Prince, Cumberland, has announced his intention of attempting to bring to the floor his resolution asking Senator John J. McClure, Delaware, to resign his seat...The resolution, extremely embarrassing to Republican senators, has been "picked" by the senate judiciary special committee.

The last time a senate committee was discharged from further consideration of a bill was in 1911...And that time really doesn't count because Republican leaders sponsored the movement and even the chairman of the discharged committee voted for the motion...The chairman was John Fox, now common pleas judge of Dauphin county... The bill was the "full crew" bill, similar to the one there already is so much fuss about in this session.

On the motion to discharge, the vote was 42 to 3. When the bill came up on final passage it was adopted, 37 to 0, and subsequently became a law...Of the members of the present senate, two who since have become prominent party leaders were split on the motion...Senator Clarence J. Buckman, Bucks, now the Republican floor leader, voted for discharge and president pro tem John Homsher, Lancaster, voted against...Homsher later voted for the bill.

The reason the senate appropriations committee is reporting so many bills earmarking a few thousand dollars each for state aided hospitals and institutions is for local "effect" ...Usually, measures of this kind are passed late in the session...During the last two biennial sessions they have been lumped together into one omnibus bill...Some senators wanted their bills to get on the calendar early this year, so out came the bills to the floor...The bills which are passed in the senate will be pigeon-holed in house committee until appropriation time arrives.

Senator Harry Shapiro, Philadelphia, must like to work...He also likes to vote "no" occasionally all by himself...At any rate, his solitary "no" boomed out against loud shouts of "aye" when the senate adopted a resolution to quit for the day at least by 4 p. m. April 24, the date for the biennial Pennsylvania legislative correspondents' "grid-iron" dinner.

Going through his desk the other day, a legislator who remains anonymous found this clipping which he thought appropriate...It was credited to a Miami newspaper and read: "The difference between death and taxes is that death doesn't get worse every time the legislature meets."

Weekly Health Talk

there is a latent period frequently lasting several years before the condition either becomes completely healed or symptoms indicate that the disease is active.

"It is during this dormant period that diagnosis should be made. And in this connection it can definitely be stated that the general use of the simple and harmless Mantoux test in the schools, particularly high schools, will do more to prevent the active disease than any other single measure.

"Once the presence of the tubercle bacillus in the child's body is known, proper hygienic living with plenty of rest, good food and restricted exercise will usually result in complete recovery. In other words, cure merely means watchful and intelligent care.

"Therefore, the best way to empty our sanatoria in the next generation is to prevent the disease from going beyond the latent state among youth. Science can do it. But it must be more generally applied than it is today if this worthy objective is to be approached. The Mantoux test and the X-ray film must be put more vigorously to work."

MOTHER AGREES TO OPERATION ON SON

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22. — Five-year-old Billy Lesic is resting more comfortably now that parental objection to the operation that will make him well again has been overcome.

Afflicted with tuberculosis of the spine, the boy has been a hospital patient since the spring of 1933. He was removed there only through the intervention of the juvenile court.

Although doctors agreed that his life was in danger, his mother opposed the treatments of modern medical science, deeming them vicious and cruel.

Then doctors decided that only an operation could effect a proper healing the boy's back. Again his mother objected. It looked for a time as if the juvenile court would have to interpose once more. But argument finally won, and the mother agreed to the operation.

New Gold Rush Is In Prospect

New Gold Strikes Reported On Flat Floor Of Mojave Desert

(International News Service)

MOJAVE, Cal., Feb. 22.—A new gold rush was in prospect here today—a rush that thus far has drawn only residents of this little desert town.

On the flat floor of the Mojave desert two new gold strikes have been made—strikes which reports say are richer by far than that made at the Silver Queen mine a few months ago.

One of these strikes was made by T. M. Bright, an old prospector employed by the Burton Brothers Mining interests.

Very Rich Ledge

Samples chipped off boulders in the vicinity of Middle Butte and Float found by Bright, indicated it was said, a very rich ledge of ore.

The other strike was made by Bruce Minard, one of the discoverers of the Silver Queen. Minard says his newest strike will more than compensate him for selling out his interests in the Silver Queen before its true worth was discovered. He claims the ore he has found will assay about $5,000 to the ton.

Patronage In House Assailed

Congressional Body Thrown Into Uproar By Attack Of Pennsylvanian

SAYS SOUTHERNERS TAKE STATE JOBS

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The House was plunged into a short-lived uproar today when Representative Rich (R) Pennsylvania, assailed the administration's patronage policy.

"I don't want southern Democrats coming into Pennsylvania and taking jobs that should go to Pennsylvanians," said Rich, in criticizing the administration for opening 10,000 jobs in the CCC to patronage.

Rich's next words were drowned in a derisive howl which came from all sections of the Democratic side of the House.

"I don't object to a partisan tirade, but I object to using George Washington's farewell address as a vehicle for it," shouted Representative Sisson (D) of New York.

After Representative Driscoll (D) Pennsylvania, had read George Washington's farewell address to the House Rich obtained unanimous consent to speak. Members assumed that the Pennsylvanian would speak on Washington. His patronage attack thus caught the Democrats unawares. After he had finished Democratic leaders blocked further partisan speeches.

Roosevelt Must Approve Measure Erasing Profits

House Rules Committee Decides To Put Issue Squarely Up To President

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. — The house rules committee today decided to put up to President Roosevelt proposed legislation to take the profits out of war.

After hearing Chairman McSwain (D) of South Carolina argue for action on his bill in the house the committee postponed a decision until McSwain obtains White House approval.

The McSwain bill freezes prices during war-time, and contemplates high taxes as a method of preventing the earning of profits during the war period.

Elevator Strike Halted Temporarily

Bronx And Manhattan Unions Withhold Action Following Conference

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—There will be no elevator strike in the Bronx at least until March 4, and none in Manhattan until Monday or later.

That was the result today of conference between realty interests and the building service employes' union north and south of the Harlem.

A tentative agreement provides that employes in the larger apartment houses—there are 8,000 in the Bronx—are to receive a minimum wage of $80 monthly and those in the smaller a minimum of $70.

The day shift is to be nine hours and the night shift 11, with union men being given preference in hiring.

HUSBANDS LIKE HENNA

"Would you be afraid to marry a redhead?" asked the young man, seeking advice.

"What difference would it make?" asked the old married man, "they all get red-headed after they have to put up with husbands."

The tendency of wealth is to concentrate. You see, as people grow richer, they have fewer children to split it.

Dash For $125,000,000 Pirate Treasure Hidden On Cocos Isle Resumed

By HOWARD BERRY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LOWESTOFT, Suffolk, Eng.,—Twelve adventurous men are again aboard the Veracity, a 45-ton Lowestoft drifter, bound on a 600 mile voyage to the Pacific to seek the famous pirate treasure, reputed to be worth $125,000,000, buried in the jungle of Cocos Island.

The expedition is really a continuation of one which Commander Frank W. Worsley, famous Antarctic explorer, set out on last summer in the big steam yacht Queen of Scots.

That expedition was suspended by the Costa Rican Government, but Commander Worsley has now secured exclusive rights to treasure-seeking on the island, and the Costa Rican Government has agreed that anything found by the expedition shall be brought back to London. An armed force to protect the expedition from high-jackers will also be provited by Costa Rica.

Commander Worsley again leads the expedition. Among the other members of the party are Captain S. Macfarlane Arthur, Irish skipper of the Veracity, Dr. J. W. Harris, an Edinburgh geologist, two mining engineers, two experts in electrical prospecting, a drill operator and a cinematographer.

"This is the first real attempt to recover the fabulous treasure buried by pirates more than a century ago," said Captain Arthur before the adventurers sailed.

"There have been dozens of expeditions to the island but none has had the experience we have. Our expedition is really a reorganized one, as we have already been out and started the work. Some of our members are there now. We have a Costa Rican police guard of 10 on the island. Their expenses are being paid by the expedition.

"The history of the treasure of the island is described in two official handbooks that are issued by the Foreign Office of this country.

"The island is 14 quare miles of thick jungle. The treasures, we believe, are hidden in two square miles on the northeast and northwest. These two places are the only accessible spots on the island. The remainder of the coast-line is like the cliffs of Dover, 200 to 300 feet higher.

"The greater part of the treasure buried there was taken from Spanish galleons by pirates some 100 years ago. It was buried on the island for safety.

"We have no doubt that the treasure is there. Some of it has already been found. In fact, there are five authentic deposits of treasure on Cocos Island. Our expedition has been granted rights of search by the Costo Rican Government, who will take a third of any treasure found."

The treasure-seeking ship Veracity was converted into something like a luxurious yacht. It was fitted with a Diesel engine and plush-covered easy chairs, silken covered bedspreads, were placed in what was once the fish hold of the vessel.

The ship is also fitted with a short wave radio to flash messages back to Britain.

The expedition is scheduled to reach Cocos Island about Feb. 15. The explorers will remain upon the island about a year if necessary.

NO EXCUSE

A newly rich man who had bought a country house awoke one night to find that his watch had stopped, whereupon he called the butler.

"What time is it, Henhy?"

"The clocks have all stopped, sir."

"Well, go out and look at the sundial."

"It's dark out there, sir."

"Well, can't you get a lantern?"

Berlin Charges He Is Persecuted

Pennsylvania Representative Says Charges Are Brought Because Of Opposition

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Rep. Berlin (D) of Pennsylvania, charged "bureaucrats" in the administration today with trying to persecute him even though he has been a strong "New Deal" supporter.

"All they are trying to do is to persecute me because I've seen fit to oppose them on some things," he said.

Berlin brought the issue to the fore by inserting a statement in the Congressional Record stating that Assistant Secretary of Commerce Mitchell accused him of "selling" an appointment and demanding removal of John Cleland, census supervisor, in Pennsylvania.

"I don't care whether they get Cleland out or not," he said. "I've set the record straight. I know what they are doing is not fair, not right and doesn't make for party harmony."

He said an examination showed that only six agricultural census enumerators appointed in his district were nominated by him.

Emergency Schools Will Be Reopened

(International News Service)

READING, Pa., Feb. 22.—Relief officials of Berks county today announced they had received orders from Robert L. Johnson, state relief director, to resume emergency educational projects on Monday.

The projects, giving employment to hundreds of jobless teachers and instruction to thousands of the idle, were ordered discontinued because of lack of relief funds.

Berks county teachers of the emergency classes, however, had made known their intention of continuing their work without compensation until the end of this week.

Take X-Rays Of Girl's Stomach

Awaits Coming Ordeal Of Operation With Smiles As Pictures Are Taken

(International News Service)

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 22.—Although today was Washington's birthday, it was just another ordeal of X-ray picture taking for 10-year-old Alyce Jane McHenry of Omaha, Neb., the girl with the "upside-down stomach", at Truesdale hospital.

The little patient took it with a courageous smile, however, willing to do all the doctors wanted as long as it meant she would be cured. She will be operated on following arrival from the West Indies of Dr. Philomen E. Truesdale next week.

Alyce's chief concern, according to Dr. George C. King, who is attending her, is her diet. She had been taken off her ice cream diet, and the light cereals being fed her do not wholly agree with her.

Four years ago Dr. Truesdale performed a similar operation on Paul'e Lewis of Beverly, now five years old and in the best of health.

Four Famous Portraits of Washington Now Appearing on Stamps

These four portraits of George Washington appeared on four of the special postage stamps issued in 1932 to commemorate the two hundredth anniversary of the first president's birth. Williams in Philadelphia in 1794; three, another portrait by Peale called "an original portrait of George Washington in revolutionary costume"; and still another portrait by Peale done in 1795. The first president of the United States was born Feb. 22, 1732, in a homestead at Wakefield, Va.

By ARTHUR C. WIMER

Control Margin For Democrats Is Narrowing

Speaker Sarig Says Party Members Have Stood Together Steadfastly

(International News Service)

READING, Pa., Feb. 22.—Asserting he recognizes a "narrowing margin" of Democratic control of the State House of Representatives, Speaker Wilson G. Sarig today nevertheless said party members have "stood together steadfastly" to assure adoption of the Earle administration's program.

Returning from Harrisburg to his home in Temple near here, the speaker pointed out that the Democratic excess in house membership over the constitutional majority of 105 has been whittled by the recent death of Rep. Edward B. Labar, Pike, and the illness of Rep. Boyd, Westmoreland.

Sarig said a fine point of law prevents the Democrats from cutting the constitution majority required for passage of laws from 105 to 104 as the result of Labar's death.

AROUND CITY HALL

Police chronology for 24 hours ending at 3:30 p. m. February 21, two arrests on charges of having violated the automobile parking law.

Building operations since January 1 has resulted in the issuance by the city engineer's department of 10 permits. The estimated cost of the construction is $8,220, according to the requests made for the permits. The biggest jobs under way are the remodelling of a storeroom; construction of a gasoline station and building of a restaurant.

City Hall rooms and offices are used by different aggregations, for instance, city employes proper, RWD employes, Workmen's Compensation board, the trial board of the State Highway patrol and the fourth floor rooms are leased for lodge purposes. Every office on the second floor is overcrowded especially the department of engineers and city clerk's office. Should the city grow and it be necessary to employ help to match the growth the building would have to be considerably revamped or rebuilt for want of room.

City council will open bids at 10 a. m. Monday for a new grader for the department of streets.

City of New Castle approved Works division projects between October 1 and January 1 cost a total of $481,030.87 of which the city's cost was $43,105.37. The balance between this and the total cost will be borne by the federal government. Included in the city's cost are the materials and the cost of tools which it might be said are used over and over again but are charged up to each project. The most costly projects are Taylor street sewer, Cunningham park and Cascade street projects. Their total cost in order named are as follows: $78,152.84; $114.096.80 and $129,403.30. The city's cost of this amount is $4,044.50.

All city offices closed today account of George Washington's birthday. However council met as usual at 10 a. m.

SAYS G.O.P. IN STATE WILL DO COMEBACK

Democrats Will Soon Lose Power

Such Is Declaration Of State Chairman Of Party, H. Harvey Taylor

SAYS DEMOCRATS MAKING MISTAKES

By SYDNEY I. EIGES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22.—The Republican party in Pennsylvania, despite its crushing defeat at the polls last November, is not the moribund organization its opponents picture it to be, State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor declared today in an interview.

"We'll be back in power before you know it," he said with assurance, "and mostly because of the mistakes of the Democrats."

Anticipating the politically divided legislature will balk in passing Gov. George H. Earle's $203,000,000 tax program, the state chairman revealed a compromise program is now in the making by Republicans. He declined to make public, however, by what methods the G. O. P. hopes to be able to raise the enormous amount of revenue needed for the next biennium.

Let Democrats Fumble

"Why should we show our hand?" he asked. "The Democrats won. They asked for the responsibility. It's their problem. Let them fumble the ball for a while. They're bound to fumble. No team can be that good."

Taylor expressed doubt that the heretofore solid Democratic majority in the house will remain a unit when the governor's tax bills reach the floor.

"Any legislator who votes for those taxes, especially the two cents a gallon boost in the gasoline tax, is signing his death warrant," he warned. "He'll never come back to Harrisburg."

The G. O. P. chairman made light of Governor Earle's opposition to a general sales tax which the executive terms a "sock the poor tax."

Every Tax Is Poor Tax

"Every tax he has suggested will eventually be passed back to the poor," he argued.

Taylor declined to state his attitude toward a general sales tax or a commodities tax, both of which have been recently suggested by Republican legislators. He expressed approval of a graded income tax as a revenue raiser. Governor Earle opposes uch a tax until all doubts concerning its legality are removed by a new constitution.

"The whole Democratic program and all the bills they have introduced are copied from the Republican platform," Taylor charged, asserting the G. O. P. legislative program was presented before the first of the administration bills were introduced. He also expressed satisfaction with the manner in which Reps. Morton J. Witkin and Ellwood Turner are leading the minority fight in the lower chamber. "The Democratic steamroller has passed over them again and again but they're still hollering," he commented.

Taylor was reluctant to express his attitude toward Sen. John J. McClure's refusal to resign his senate seat because of the senator's connection with the Delaware liquor conspiracy but revealed he had a plan to solve the situation by compromise under consideration. He likewise refused to discuss criticism of the party for placing so-called "old guard" leaders in the chairmanships of the important senate committees but it was understood the chairmanships were apportioned without Taylor's approval.

Declines Encores They're Expensive

(International News Service)

VALENCIA, Feb. 22.—Miguel Fleta, Spain's famous tenor who thrilled the world singing "jotas" of his native Aragon, can't sing them as encores any more.

He can't afford the $28 fee the Society of Authors levies for each non-program item.

Theater-goers who applauded Fleta's magic voice at the Apollo theater here brought the noted singer before the curtain, to get only this plaintive apology instead of the encore they expected.

The Madrid press is protesting this state of affairs.

An Ice-Cold Ax.
Two More NRA Years.
If A Cat Saw King George.
A Witch Doctor At Work.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

INTERESTING and strange news concerns the ax with which Chancellor Hitler's 67-year-old headsman cuts off women's heads. He puts the blade of his ax on ice, keeping it at the freezing point, just before the head-chopping moment arrives. This will surprise Americans that have always dipped their razors in hot water to make them sharper.

Steel contracts when cold, perhaps that makes the ax blade narrower at the edge, and sharper.

The edge of a razor seen under the microscope is said to be like a saw, with teeth so small they are invisible to the eye. Hot water, in expanding the razor blades, might spread the saw-teeth apart, and make them cut better. Some physicist will tell all about it.

The Hitler headsman, after striking the blow, leaves the ax blade buried in the block, pressing against the woman's neck for a few moments, closing the great blood vessels, making the beheading less bloody and unpleasant.

TWO MEN will be the next customers for the old headsman's ax.

The Baroness von Falkenhayn von Berg, whose head was cut off on Monday morning, was buried in the aristocratic Kaiser Wilhelm Cemetery.

Six members of her family stood around the grave praying as the coffin was lowered. It must have been hard for them, the women especially, to realize that she was lying in her coffin before them, with her head cut from her body.

Those whose religious faith assured them that the body would rise again might even wonder whether the scar would show.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT asks Congress to continue NRA for two years more. Everybody will be satisfied if two more years prove to be enough.

It is to be hoped that the new NRA regulations to be suggested by the Senate after investigation will deal mainly with telling various agencies how to spend public money, interfering as little as possible with a man's right to run his business.

Until you have Americans running business in their own way and hiring workers in the old way, with reasonable regulations as to minimum pay and maximum hours, you won't have any old-fashioned American prosperity.

IF A CAT should look at King George tomorrow or next day, he might see a nervous king, twisting around in his outer garments.

Queen Mary, who went to the British industries fair, was much taken with a display of heavy woolen underwear. She sent a good supply to her husband, telling the salesman:

'I think the king will like them."

The hearts of many American husbands will go out to King George.

IF THE human race is no stronger than its weakest link, it is feeble.

Pennsylvania tells of a hex doctor or "witch doctor" brought in to break a spell and bring a devil out of a small boy that had slashed his eight-month-old baby brother with a penknife.

The witch doctor came, went through the pow-wow, mumbling a ritual, said:

"The boy is cured by faith, leave him alone with the baby."

The credulous parents left them alone, and the boy slashed his little brother's head with a butcher knife, instead of a penknife. The baby may recover.

There are something fewer than two thousand million human beings on earth, and when you realize that more than half of them believe in vile superstition of the "witch doctor" kind, you know that the human race has a long way to travel.

NEW YORK'S Legislature proposes to tax pilots a few dollars a year and airplanes $200 a year.

Quite frank about the matter, politicians who need a little ready cash, say the idea would be to appoint a commission to inspect airplanes, and use the taxes paid by pilots and on planes to pay their salaries.

Gov. Lehman will probably find a way to stop that particular nonsense. Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, has just failed in a public-spirited effort to get a first-class flying field close to New York City, where the greater part of aviation traffic, passengers and mails originate. This invention of a tax system, which would discourage New York's aviation entirely, is a new form of idiocy.

THIS COUNTRY is incapable of defending itself in modern war because it has failed to provide necessary airplanes, submarines and trained pilots. The present effort is to interfere with United States production of ammunition.

Suppose war should come, and even the softest pacifist does not declare that impossible, where would the government get ammunition in a hurry, if it had no ammunition makers, no factories in production?

Would it rely, perhaps, on the $1-a-year patriots that, outside of the realm of personal profit, made such a complete failure, of preparation in the big war?

IN THE little village church of Muel, Spain, four unknown paintings by Goya have been discovered.

This is a great deal more important than discovering chests full of gold in some ancient Spanish galleon. The world will produce plenty of gold, but will never produce another Goya.

He goes into a restaurant and eats his fill.

He waits until the only occupant of the room is the cashier. He approaches as if to pay, placing beside the cash desk a large bag. He opens it suddenly and snakes begin to glide out along the counter.

Mitchell Held In Wife's Death

Murder Charge Is Pressed As Coroner's Jury Recommends Negro Be Held

WITNESSES TELL ABOUT SHOOTING

James Mitchell, Negro of Shady Side, whose wife Evelyn Mitchell, died in the New Castle hospital February 17, of wounds received at the hands of her husband, was held for court of charge of murder, following a joint hearing and inquest before Alderman Wallace J. Ewing and Coroner Potter in Alderman Ewing's court, Thursday p. m. The coroner's jury recommended that Mitchell be held on a murder charge, after determining Mrs. Mitchell had died of wounds he had inflicted.

Witnesses testified that Mrs. Mitchell said her husband had shot her after remarking that he was going to "show her who was boss."

Doctor Testifies

Dr. John Foster was the first witness summoned. He stated that he had been called to treat Mrs. Mitchell on the morning of February 12 in the New Castle hospital. She had a gun wound in the abdomen, which penetrated the liver. Death followed on February 17, at 1:45 and a post mortem examination showed that the bullet had passed through the index finger and flattened out, making a lacerated wound when it struck her abdomen. It had passed through the liver, which was badly torn up. He removed the bullet after death.

Kitty Jackson, colored, of South Mill street, told of being at the Matchell home during the night and of being awakened by a noise and heard the remark "I am going to shoot you," followed by the report of a gun. She went out into the hall and saw Mrs. Mitchell lying on the bed. There was blood on her clothing.

Police Lieutenant Ralph A. Criswell, and officers Cecil F. Suber, Herman Richards, and Richard Cooper, testified to having been called to the mitchell home by the report of a shooting affray and of finding Mrs. Mitchell lying wounded across the bed in an upstairs room. Mitchell had locked himself in one of the rooms of the house and had hidden the rifle with which the wound is alleged to have been inflicted under the back porch.

They told of removing Mrs. Mitchell to the hospital and of placing him and the other occupants of the the home under arrest as witnesses.

The jury was composed of G. N. Clark, William Nunley, Charles E. Allen, Bernard Rocks, James B. Cooper and William Reck.

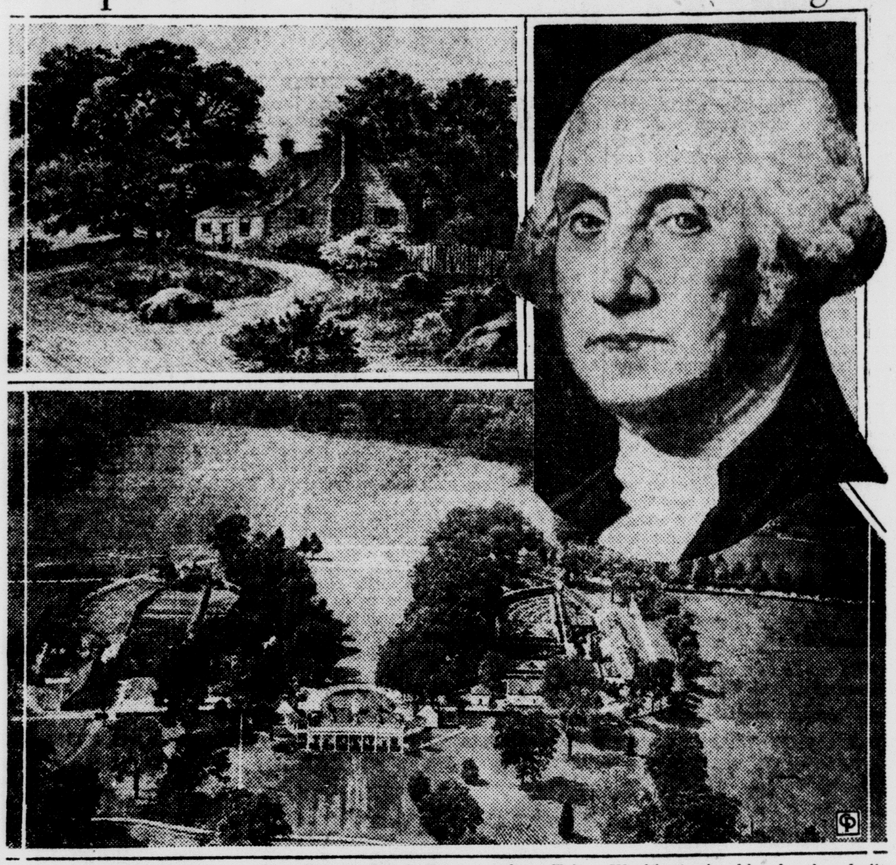
Birthplace and Famous Home of Washington



In this picturesque homestead at Wakefield, Va., reproduced in the little known woodcut above, George Washington was born Feb. 22, 1732. Below is an unusual airview of Mount Vernon which Washington's elder brother built on the Potomac river near Washington, D. C., in 1743.

Costs Nearly $3,000,000 Yearly To Maintain 6,000 In Four Prisons

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22.—Pennsylvania spends almost $3,000,000 a year maintaining more than 6,000 inmates in its four penal institutions, according to the prison report of the Department of Welfare submitted by the former secretary, Alice F. Liveright, and made public today.

For the four years ending June 1, 1935, a total of $10,557,000 was appropriated for maintenance at the Eastern and Western state penitentiaries, the State Industrial School for Boys at Huntingdon and the State Industrial School for Women at Muncy, the report disclosed.

Additional appropriations were recommended by the outgoing secretary for construction of an institution for mental defectives in the Cumberland valley, completion of the Graterford penitentiary, development of farm workhouses and industrial prison farms.

In 1934, it cost $1.70 a day to maintain a prisoner at Muncy, $1.21 at Huntingdon, $1.11 at the Western penitentiary and its Rockview branch, and .92 cents at the Eastern penitentiary and the Graterford branch. These statistics, the report pointed out, "reflect the program or absence of a program, within the prison walls."

Last year almost 40 per cent of the new committments to state penitentiaries and reformatories were youths below 21 years, the report showed, and almost 20 per cent were under 25 with 14 per cent between 25 and 29.

Administration of Huntingdon reformatory prior to the appointment of John R. Cranor as general superintendent in February, 1932, was severely criticized in the report. Before Cranor's appointment, according to the report, "an old fashioned disciplinary system shrouded the entire institution in a cloud of hopelessness which hampers the reshaping of the lives committed to its care." It was at that time "perhaps the most rigidly disciplined reformatory in the United States," according to the report.

Among the changes effected at Huntingdon were abolition of clipping inmates' hair; elimination of cell feeding; changing of uniforms from gray to blue "to create and maintain self respect"; extension of education and recreational facilities and creation of an "honor system," the report pointed out. Progress made at the other penal institutions also was outlined.

Keystone State Is Leader In Airports

Pennsylvania With 416 Stands Fourth In Licensed Aircraft In States

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Rated among the first five states in number of licensed aircraft and pilots, Pennsylvania leads the nation with the greatest number of commercial airports, according to latest statistics of the Bureau of Air Commerce, Department of Commerce.

Seventy of Pennsylvania's 116 airports and landing fields are commercial airports, more than either California or Texas, each of which surpasses the Keystone State in the total number of landing areas.

The figures as of January 1, 1935, give Pennsylvania 10 municipal airports, 70 commercial, 12 intermediate landing fields, 13 auxiliary fields, two army airdromes, and one navy air station. Forty of the 116 fields are lighted for night operations. Only 17 states have fewer municipal airports than Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania, with 416, stands fourth in number of licensed aircraft, and fifth, with 732, in number of licensed pilots. These represent slight decreases from 1934, apparent from the total figures for the country.

Dr. J. H. Clemens Addresses Class

Former Pastor Of First M. E. Church Speaks At Dinner Last Evening

Dr. J. H. Clemens, superintendent of the Meadville district of the Methodist Episcopal church, and former pastor of the First M. E. church, spoke to members of the G. W. Moody Bible class and a large group of friends at a dinner held in the First M. E. church basement last evening.

Dr. Clemens' subject was "What is wrong with the church?" a topic of timely interest. He stated that the principal thing wrong is that the church members do not display the interest in Christian activities that they do in other things.

James D. McClelland, president of the class, presided, and introduced C. B. Bartlett, who presented Dr. Clemens to the audience. The invocation was delivered by Dr. J. A. Galbraith, pastor of the Epworth M. E. church. Music was rendered during the dinner by an orchestra from the Sabbath School, while Mrs. W. P. Felch, gave several beautiful solo numbers.

The men of the class, not only prepared the splendid chicken dinner, but also served it in a highly efficient manner. Around two hundred were present on the occasion.

Hoover's Stand Has 'Em Puzzled

Republicans In Congress All At Sea Over Gold Statements

SOME BELIEVE IT "TRIAL BALLOON"

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—A canvas of the Republicans in congress revealed today that most of them are deeply puzzled over Herbert Hoover's sudden advocacy of a return to the gold standard, and the motives that impelled the former president to break his long silence on a major question of public policy at this time.

Mr. Hoover has no intimates or "spokesmen" left among the Republicans left in congress, so the curiosity of the rank and file remained unappeased. During his presidency, Senator Walcott of Connecticut, was regarded as the White House spokesman in the senate, but Walcott succumbed in the Democratic landslide of '32.

See Trial Balloon

Most of the Republicans who would comment at all "guessed" that Mr. Hoover has put up a trial balloon to ascertain if there is a popular drift of the political winds in his favor. It is only natural, they said, for a beaten candidate for the presidency to itch for another chance.

There was, however, a marked degree of coolness or lukewarmness to suggestions that the former president essay a comeback next year.

The progressive Republicans of the type of Senator Nye of North Dakota, openly derided the possibility. The conservatives and middle-of-the-roaders were either silent or anonymously hostile. As for the Democrats, they indicated nothing would please them better than to see Mr. Hoover again the nominee of the party.

It was significant that the Republican presidential possibilities left in congress were conspicuously silent.

May Draft Stone

The concensus was quite general that if Mr. Hoover hopes to make the gold question a paramount issue in the '36 campaign, a la '96, he will fail. It has been forty years since '96, and even more when the yardstick of economics is used to measure the time.

There has been an undercurrent of talk in Republican circles for some time of the possibility of "drafting" Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone for the nomination next year. The Republicans went to the supreme court for Charles Evans Hughes, in 1916, so there is precedent for it.

But significantly enough, Justice Stone was the only one of the nine justices who last Monday supported the government in all phases of its gold policy.

The Republicans are frankly puzzled—and for the moment seemingly uncertain as to what it all means.

Ancient Portrait Of Washington Is Located In Attic

Ancient Picture Is Unsigned, Newly Found Picture Given To Hebrew Association

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Feb. 22.—Found covered with dust and cobwebs in an attic of an old wooden house, a newly-discovered portrait of George Washington hung today in the clubrooms of the Young Men's Hebrew Association.

The painting, uncovered by Arthur Rosenstein, Boston architect who was remodelling the house, depicts Washington, bareheaded, and in full dress uniform, looking off into the distance.

In front of Washington is a small heap of scattered cannon-balls. In the right background, a soldier is leading the General's white horse. In the left foreground may be seen one of the wheels of a cannon-carriage.

The painting was unsigned.

House Democrats Given Patronage

Will Be Permitted To Recommend Appointees For CCC Camp Jobs

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—House Democrats were "high hatting" their senators today—the administration has permitted them to recommend appointees for 10,000 superintendent and foreman jobs in the CCC camps.

Speaker Byrns announced these glad tidings at a caucus of disgruntled Democrats whom President Roosevelt previously had termed "soreheads" because of their complaints about being "left out in the cold" on federal patronage. Byrns said at least six jobs will be open immediately in each camp, paying from $110 to $200 a month, and he promised the senators would have no say on this class of patronage.

Their repeated squawks about Mr. Roosevelt giving so many jobs to Republicans and ignoring them completely, won another White House concession, Rep. McFarlane of Texas reported the president plans to place a personnel man in each federal department to receive complaints of house members.

Denies Offer Of Money For Position

Greensburg Judge Says He Did Not Seek Position For Son By Bribery

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 22.—Judge Charles D. Copeland reiterated a denial today that he offered Rep. William N. Berlin $1,000 if the latter could obtain a federal aviation job for his son, Richard Copeland.

In the national house of representatives yesterday, Berlin inserted in the Congressional Record a denial that he ever told Ewing Y. Mitchell, assistant secretary of commerce, a position for young Copeland was "worth $1,000" to him.

"It's a case of veracity now," commented Judge Copeland. "I don't know who to believe.

"Berlin has put his side of this on record and he has made affidavits that he didn't say it."

The jurist planned to send telegrams today to Mitchell, Daniel C. Roper, secretary of commerce, and Eugene L. Vidnal, director of air commerce.

Young Copeland was dismissed from a temporary appointment as assistant manager of No. 1 Airways District last December.

Council Opposes 3 Platoon System

Will Inform Representatives New Castle Is Against House Bill

City council met in the municipal building today and voted unanimously to oppose a bill in the house of representatives which would increase from a two to three platoon system for paid firemen in third class cities. The bill, if enacted into law, would increase the fire department quota one third.

Council's action was taken following receipt of a resolution adopted by McKeesport council which passed a resolution opposing the bill. Council has instructed the city solicitor here to draft the resolution which will be sent to the representatives from this district.

Safety Director Davies asked councilmanic colleagues if it were their desire to increase the quota here. He said it would be a poor time to take such action. He then introduced the blanket resolution. It was seconded by Councilman Hoyland and adopted unanimously.

LUDLEY, Mass.—A farmer's revenge, forced a member of the board of assessors to walk three miles when his automobile bogged down in a mudhole, promised to get more attention for appropriation for road repairs.

Richard Hejowz, the assessor, appealed for a horse to a farmer when his automobile stuck fast in two feet of mud and slush on an isolated road. The farmer refused, declaring:

"When I went to town meeting and asked to have this piece of road fixed up, all the town officers voted agin it. Now you con stick there."

The nearest tow car was three miles away. Hejowz walked it.

PREPARE THIS MONTH FOR FLOWER GARDEN

Timely tasks to be done in February by the person interested in beautifying the home grounds are suggested.

Needed garden materials should be ordered not later than this month. This also is a good time to clean and oil all tools. Old crank case oil can be used for oiling the metal parts, and the handles and other wooden parts can be painted to protect the wood from drying out.

Fertilizer will be needed for the garden. Plants need food the same as individuals except that the food of plants consists of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. Nitrogen is important in the development of new growth and foliage. Phosphoric acid tends to promote the formation of the main and flower stems, the woody parts of the plant, and to some extent the coloring of the blossoms. Potash is utilized by the plant as it reaches maturity. It enters into the development of roots and tubers, as well as the formation of seeds and fruits.

Some samples of complete fertilizers are : 4-8-4 (4 per cent nitrogen, 8 per cent phosphoric acid, and 4 per cent potash), 5-10-5, 4-12-4 and 4-8-7. Other types of materials used are: Humus, rotted leaf mold, barnyard manure, and compost material.

Should some of the newer varieties of annuals and perennials should be planted in the garden, and the size of the rose bed be increased this year. A good rose collection can be built up over a period of years.

If insects and diseases are noticeable on the plant material, spraying should be done to control them. Information along this line may be obtained from the Agricultural Extension office, No. 206 Post Office Building, New Castle.

ADJUST DAIRY HERD TO ECONOMIC BASIS

Dairymen of Lawrence county who wish to increase the net income from their dairy herds should check very carefully on the milk producing or working ability of each individual cow in their herd.

Cows vary greatly in their value to their owner. Some cows, good milkers, are returning a profit to their owner while others often in the same herd, because of small milk yields, are causing serious loss on the entire herd.

A re-adjustment in dairy herds sees to be very necessary at this time. All cows in the herd should be treated as individuals. Milk records should be kept and every cow carefully studied and checked. The best cows should be retained and the low producers moved out at the first opportunity. All cows kept should have the best possible feed and care, for it is the cow or herd fed in accordance to its needs that produces milk at the lowest cost.

The following is recommended as a constructive dairy program suited to the times: Record-keeping on every cow in the herd, weeding out all low producers, feeding of all cows in accordance to production, use of a good sire, and raising heifer calves from only the best cows in the herd.

CONTROL DAMPING-OFF TO AVOID CROP LOSSES

Practically all kinds of vegetable seedings suffer heavy losses from damping-off unless control measures are used. The loss is heavier and more general on vegetables grown under glass, but moderated and even severe losses often occur under field conditions.

Thorough sterilization of the soil by means of steam or formaldehyde drench is very effective against damping-off when recontamination of the soil can be prevented. Growers who find these soil treatments impractical will get similar benefits by following recommended cultural practices and the use of one of the chemical treatments for seed or soil.

Since the fungi causing damping-off grow near the surface of the soil, their destructiveness under glass can be reduced by the use of several cultural practices. These include covering the seed with sand, planting the seed in rows and avoiding crowding, and watering the seedlings when the temperature is rising, preferably in the morning.

Best results can only be obtained by using the chemical treatments that avoid injury to the particular crop and control the fungi which are responsible for the greatest loss on that crop. The treatments are applied to the soil or seed before or at planting time.

For the following crops the treatments are listed in their usual order of effectiveness:

Beets—Formaldehyde dust, red copper oxide, bluestone.

Broccoli—Formaldehyde dust, zinc oxide.

Cabbage — Corrosive sublimate, formaldehyde dust, red copper oxide.

Carrots—Zinc oxide, formaldehyde dust.

Cauliflower—Corrosive sublimate, formaldehyde dust, red copper oxide.

COLLEGE TESTS FIVE METHODS OF HOTBEDS

Results of experiments on different methods of heating hotbeds at the Pennsylvania State college have been received at the Agricultural Extension office. Five sources of hear: Electricity, manure, kerosene oil, natural gas and anthracite coal, were used in the tests last spring.

Standard wood frame portable hotbeds were used and standard 3-by 6-foot sash used to cover them. Six electrically heated beds of two sash each, thermostatically regulated and metered independently, were employed. Four sash were heated by manure, four sash by kerosene oil, four sash by gas, and twelve sash by a coal heater.

The costs of installing each treatment, on the basis of cost per sash, were very nearly the same. Also, all treatments appeared to be satisfactory from a plant-growing standpoint, as judged by the growth of plants in the frames and by the records of temperatures of soil and air in each frame night and morning.

The least amount of electricity used by any of the electrically heated beds was 46.6 kilowatt hours, per sash for the month of April, the highest amount was 98.5 kilowatt hours. The average for the six electric treatments was about 70 kilowatt-hours per sash for the month. This is to be compared with the manure bed in which one cubic yard of manure was used per sash. However, the manure is still usable when it comes out of the bed, so most of the cost is for the labor of getting the manure ready and getting it into the frame.

The kerosene heated bed used 2.33 gallons per sash for the month but the thermostat was so set that the temperature in this bed was always slightly lower than in the others which probably accounts for part of this very low kerosene consumption. The heater which was used for anthracite coal was fitted with a thermostat to regulate the drafts according to the temperature of the water in the circulating pipes around the bed, and was also equipped with a magazine feed for the feed.

This bed used 50.5 pounds of pea size anthracite coal per sash for the month. No figures on the gas hotbed are given because this bed was not started as soon as the others. However, the bed operated satisfactorily and offers possibilities in sections where gas is cheap.

A plant grower should first of all find out what the cost of each fuel may be in his own particular region before deciding upon what kind of hotbed to install. The anthracite coal heated bed cannot be adapted to beds of only two or four sash size, which leaves the very small gardener a choice among the other fuels.

The girls are so beautiful and their clothes so smart," says Lady Dorothy Campbell, wife of Sir Malcolm Campbell, automobile speed king, who is now at Daytona Beach, Fla., seeking to break his own record on the hard sand. Lady Campbell herself has driven their high-geared cars as fast as 104 miles per hour, but has been discouraged by relatives who think one speed demon in the family is enough. MAINE MAN SETTLES FOR DAMAGE TO CAR

Automobiles of G. A. Marshall, Wilton, Me., and G. C. Sergeant, 226 Garfield avenue, collided at the intersection of East Falls and North Mercer street at 6 p. m., last night. Mr. Marshall settled for the damages to Sergeant's car, according to a report made to city police.

The new minister had asked Eph Brown to lead in prayer. It was Eph's first experience of this sort, so he complied. Twenty minutes passed, and he still was praying. The congregation was becoming restless. Finally from one of the deacons came a strong "Amen!"

Eph looked up and exclaimed:

"Thanks, deacon; that's the word I've been trying to think of ever since I started."

Troopers Lost In Search For Slayer Of Girl

Two State Troopers Walk In Circle In Deep Snow And Finally Locate Community

(International News Service)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 22.—Search for Jeff Walters, sought in connection with the slaying of Anna Zinn, 15-year-old school girl, continued today after two State troopers, assigned to the man-hunt, nearly perished after becoming lost in the wilds of Fayette county.

The troopers, Ray Walsh and George Wisconis, were lost temporarily in the mountain country between Smithfield and West Virginia border. They had plodded through snow-covered field, streams and dense underbrush for almost 20 miles when they became lost.

Walk In Circles

They walked in circles for several hours, finally making their way to a small mountain community just as dusk fell last night.

Search for Walters, for whom a reward has been offered, was concentrated near the West Virginia frontier after State police received a tip that the alleged killer would attempt to reach that state.

Next Dirigible To Be Commercial

Government-Built Vehicle Will Not Be Trusted To Navy For Operation

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The next government-built dirigible will not be entrusted to the Navy department to operate; it will be subsidized to a commercial company for trans-Pacific passenger and mail traffic, Rep. McGrath (D) of California, predicted today.

While the department's inquiry into the sinking of the Macon a few weeks ago continues, and after President Roosevelt stated no money will be appropriated for another dirigible within the immediate future, McGrath insisted there is a strong sentiment within the Navy department for another lighter-than-air ship.

McRath, who is a member of the House Naval committee, stated:

"Regardless of the opposition among the sea-going admirals, I believe construction of another dirigible will be started within the next year or so."

Rex Tugwell Is Still In Picture

Undersecretary Of Agriculture Will Remain In New Deal, Advices State

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Undersecretary of Agriculture Rex Tugwell will remain in the new deal.

Close to resignation ever since the sudden "liquidation" of his most trusted group of advisers, headed by Jerome Frank, the dapper "brain-truster" has lately been closeted with President Roosevelt more often and for longer periods than almost any other White House caller.

Apparently the debate has ended, with Tugwell definitely held in the fold. He has told friends he is remaining.

Relatives Mourn Death Of Girls

Aunt And Grandmother Of Late Du Bois Sisters Under Doctor's Care

DOUBLE SUICIDE PROVES SHOCK

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Feb. 22—Two relatives, an aunt and a grandmother of Jane and Elizabeth Du Bois, who plunged to their deaths from an airplane in England, today were under the care of physicians from shock.

Grave fears were expressed for the health of Mrs. Seth Mendell, 80 year old grandmother of the girls, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frances P. White, in Newton. She had been in ill health for several years and news of the tragedy struck her a severe blow.

An aunt, Miss Rachel Du Bois, 55, sister of Italian consul Coert Du-Bois, father of the girls, was at a Boston hospital when reports of the tragedy arrived. She has been under treatment for a nervous ailment for six years. A special nurse was assigned to be with her constantly for the next few days.

Ickes Talks On Oil Situation

Says Action Should Not Be Deferred If Oil Is Going To Be Public Utility

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—"If oil is going to be declared a public utility at any time, there is no reason why such action should be deferred.' Oil Administrator Harold L. Ickes declared today.

"If the waste of oil is going to continue, it would be wise to take steps to correct this situation," Ickes continued. "Legislation is now before congress to declare coal a public utility. Coal does not evaporate and go up in the air like natural gas.

"By declaring oil a public utility there would be greater conservation of oil; more scientific methods of production could be utilized; and it could be processed and manufactured with a great deal less waste. A great deal of gasoline is still being refined by old wasteful methods.

"We must look ahead in the program for conservation of oil. Where gasoline costs from ten to fifteen or twenty cents a gallon, it is not at all infallible that it will cost a dollar a gallon twenty years from now unless definite steps in conservation are taken."

ORDER PLANES TO KEEP AWAY FROM U. S. WHITE HOUSE

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—A general order was issued today to all airplanes to steer clear of the White House.

Some time ago, President Roosevelt complained that his sleep was interrupted by low-flying planes, but nothing was ever done about it.

A few nights ago two trans-continental 'planes flew low over the executive grounds, their mufflers were open.

Today the White House instructed the commerce, war and navy departments to issue orders to all flyers to avoid the White House.

NRA Auto Report Is Under Attack

Manufacturers Association Says Report Marshalled To Promote Organizing

(International News Service)

DETROIT, Feb. 22.—The Automobile Manufacturers' Association today branded the Henderson NRA report on labor conditions in the automobile industry as "full of falsehoods, marshalled to promote the organizing campaign of the American Federation of Labor."

The charge was made in a letter by Pyke Johnson, vice president of the association, to S. Clay Williams, chairman of the National Industrial Recovery Board.

The letter said, in part, "the NRA investigators doubtless were deceived by the bulk of the testimony of the American Federation and of witnesses marshalled by the federation."

Eight Start On Jail Sentences

Pickets Arrested At Jamaica, N. Y., Refuse To Obey Order Of Judge

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—One woman and seven men started serving ten-day jail sentences today because they refused to write the oath of allegiance to the flag and a promise to "respect all laws and the constitution and respect the court" 200 times each.

They were arrested for picketing a Jamaica restaurant where a strike is in progress.

The prisoners said they objected to being "treated like school children" and told Magistrate Benjamin Marvin in Long Island police court they would rather go to jail than comply with his orders.

Mellon-Johnson Kept Atlantic Wires Buzzing

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22—Andrew W. Mellon's mild, halting voice was not absent from the councils of his financial empire during his term abroad as ambassador to England in 1932 testimony at his income tax hearing disclosed today.

Conversations by trans-Atlantic telephone were "quite frequent" between Mellon and his trusted financial secretary, Howard M. Johnson, the latter related.

"I mave have talked by trans-Atlantic telephone with Mr. Mellon," Johnson replied to a question concerning authorization of a stock transaction in May, 1932. "That happened quite frequently."

Fastidious Bug Causes Huge Loss

(International News Service)

PORTLAND, Ore.,—The fastidious pine beetle, which eats only Ponderosa or western yellow pine, chews up as much wood each year as is cut by sawmills in two states and destroyes eight times as much timber as does the much publicized forest fire, it is estimated by Prof. T. J. Starker, head of forestry in Oregon State College.

Burninbg of infested timber tracts appears to be the only method of controlling the pests.

"Bug-killed timber is seldom salvaged," Starker said. "Somehow the beetles will not cooperate and kill near railroads and sawmills."

A white buffalo, probably the rarest animal to be found in the United States, was born in Montana last year.

Andrews Sets Flight Record

Makes California To Washington Hop In 10 Hours And 22 Minutes

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Flying a low-winged aluminum monoplane, Leland S. Andrews, veteran airlines pilot, roared into Washington at 1:12 p. m. Thursday, ending a record breaking flight from Los Angeles.

He covered the 2,295 miles from the coast in ten hours, 22 minutes. His average speed was 220 miles per hour. The plane left Los Angeles at 11:50 p. m., P. C. T., last night.

Thirteen minutes after his arrival here, Andrews and his co-pilot Henry Myers took off for New York in an effort to beat Maj. James Doolittle's transcontinental record of 11 hours 59 minutes from Los Angeles to New York.

Airport officials said it was almost certain Andrews would break the Doolittle record.

A CHAT ABOUT POSTAGE STAMPS

BY JOHNRAE EARL, SEC. NEW CASTLE STAMP CLUB.

Well, this week the stamp world is all confused and excited about the stamps that were given away by Farley. The latest news from Washington says that all of the stamps that were thus given away since March 4, 1933, would be re-issued and be put on sale to the public on March 15 at the postoffice department philatelic agency at Washington, D. C. The stamps that will be issued in this manner are, imperforate style: Mother's Day, Flat Press, Wisconsin Tercentenary, all ten of the National Park stamps, the 16c Air Mail-Special Delivery stamp. The ones which will be perforated are only two, the Newburgh and the Byrd Little America stamp. Souvenir panes will be issued of the one and three-cent Chicago Century of Progress, Little America, the Omaha sheets and the Mt. Rainier three-cent stamp. These will only be sold at the Philatelic agency in Washington and can be secured in either complete sheets or in blocks of four. The latter will be preferred by the greater majority of collectors. These stamps will also be ungumed, but can be used for postage.

Preparing first-day covers for these stamps is going to be quite a task. They will all be mailed from Washington on March 15 and the persons mailing them will have to cut each stamp with scissors and apply glue to each one to attach it to the envelope. Incidentally a first-day cover is an envelope that carries the new stamp and is mailed from the town or postoffice in which that stamp is issued on the first day of its issuance.

These new stamps being issued will net the postoffice department a clear gain of several hundred thousand dollars. I say clear gain because most of these stamps will be bought by collectors and never used to carry the mail, but will immediately be placed in their collections. However, a stop has been put to this to prevent such an occurrence ever again happening. I will quote you the act exactly as it was handed down. "Orders have been issued that hereafter no sheets of any stamps will be allowed outside of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing except in the form in which the stamp is available to the public over the counter."

NEWS FROM BYRD

Radio dispatches from Charles F. Anderson, United States postoffice cancellation expert, now with the Byrd expedition, reveal that all of the special mail has been canceled and stored in 40 sacks aboard the S. S. Jacob Ruppert which will arrive at San Francisco on March 25. These covers will undergo postoffice inspection and then will be forwarded to their owners in the United States and other parts of the world. These covers bear the postmark and cachet of Little America, and bear Byrd stamps as postage.

Charles Anderson is personally attending the pouch containing several hundred special covers which were autographed by Admiral Byrd. These are the only ones autographed and are to be sold by the expedition and the proceeds will help to reduce the heavy indebtedness of the expedition.

STAMP EXHIBIT

Tonight at the First Christian church the New Castle Stamp club is co-poerating with the Boy Scout Merit Badge show by placing on display stamps and explaining to the boys the phases of stamp-collecting. Stamp-collecting is one of the subjects about which a Boy Scout may secure a merit badge.

INVITATION TO MEETING

The Stamp club is holding a large open meeting Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. and they cordially invite anyone that is interested in the club to attend this meeting. All of the out of town clubs are being invited and the principal speaker of the evening is R. R. Dickson, president of the Pittsburgh Philatelic society. His topic will cover the air mail issues of the United States and semi-postal issues of the world. Mr. Dickson is very well known in the stamp world and a large audience is expected to be present.

Find Method To Make Emeralds

(International News Service)

BERLIN.—Two German chemists, Drs. Jaeger and Espig succeeded in "making" what is believed to be the first synthetical emeral ever produced.

The stone has a beautiful color and "fire".

The scientists do not intend exploiting the invention commercially, because of the expensive process and the plentiful supply of natural emeralds available all over the world. They regard production of the stone as an interesting experiment demonstrating technical scientific possibilities.

Mother And Daughter Die In Suicide Pact, Are Bared As Leaders Of Death Gang

(International News Service)

BELGRADE—The terrible secrets of a gang of outlaws led by a middle aged woman are coming to light following her death by suicide in "the Wood of Death."

Now that her evil influence has been removed by her own hand stories are being brought to the police describing her crimes during the last ten years.

A lonely house in the forest near Oraovitza was used as her headquarters.

Thither hundreds of travelers on roads through the forest were lured to horrible deaths.

The woman, known only as Marija, and her daughter had a gang variously estimated at from 25 to 50 men, largely recruited from the ranks of ex-convicts notorious for their brutality and lust for blood. Marija had a reputation for appalling cruelty and while she was alive, no one in the neighborhood dared report her misdeeds to the police.

Sometimes large parties of travelers were attacted; sometimes a solitary victim was trapped and slain for whatever he carried in valuables.

Police investigations near the house revealed underground warehouses stocked with loot.

An underground arsenal was also discovered, containing machine guns rifles, revolvers and bombs as well as dozens of suits of clothes belived to have been stripped from recent victims. There are several uniforms of Yugoslav army officers.

Marija and her daughter were found in the house, evidently as the result of a suicide pact. One that mother and daughter killed a lonely traveler in his sleep—only to find out afterwards that he was Maritza's lost son, who had come into "the Wood of Death" in search of the mother he saw last when he was a child. But that mother-kills-son-by-error tale is folk lore hereabouts and usually is tacked on to any crime story.

The police are now combing the forest to round up the members of the gang and clear out the hiding places with which it is reputed to abound.

House Votes On Army Increase

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—In a burst of enthusiasm for better preparedness, the house Thursday voted a mandatory increase of 11,000 enlisted men in the regular army.

An amendment to the war department supply bill, offered by Rep. Thomason (D) Texas, was adopted by a vote of 97-66. It added $11,000,000 to the bill for 11,000 men as the first actual step in increasing army strength to 165,000 men.

NEW BREAD STARTS WAVE OF HEALTH GIVING DIETS AMONG LOCAL HOUSEWIVES

Revolutionary New Honey-Krushed Wheat Bread Introduced to Local Housewives Quickly Relieves Constipation and Bowel Disorders

Those who provide and prepare the daily meals for their families can thank this modern bakery for securing a menu staple that not only has amazing food value, but is a positive relief for chronic constipation. That is Honey Krushed Wheat Bread.

After a long search The O. C. Orr Baking Co. secured a bread formula that would furnish the "bulk" needed to help promote regular bowel habits. Experts selected from the crops of American fields and farms, the choicest golden wheat grains and from the hives of industrious bees came pure honey. The result? An amazing new bread—vastly better in taste, texture and wholesomeness and offering a positive relief from constipation. No more need to drain your system by taking drastic purgatives. Give Honey Krushed Wheat Bread a fair trial and note the results.

The simple ingredients, the tasty flavor, the build-up qualities make Honey Krushed Wheat Bread popular with the whole family—breakfast, lunch or dinner. It is packed with nourishment and is a positive regulator without the dry, woody taste of some foods. Buy it today. Make a ten-day test in your own home. Enjoy it often and you will soon experience the benefits of that rare combination of crushed whole wheat and honey. And you will bless the day when you first discovered this marvelous food and regulator.

People who are really ill, of course, should consult their physician. Honey Krushed Wheat Bread is simply recommended for common constipation and is not a cure-all. But bread must be eaten. Why not get the loaf that is so popular in thousands of homes because it is so beneficial. You'll eat it with enthusiasm and serve it without apology.

The original Orr's Honey Krushed Wheat Bread is easily identified at your grocers by its extra outer coating of crushed wheat. It comes already sliced and conveniently cellophane wrapped for your protection.

On Court House Hill

The Federal Land Bank of Baltimore has issued a scire facias against Everett B. and Edna Kennedy, original mortgagors, and Paul M. Daytner, mortgagor assumptor and real owner, to collect a mortgage on which the balance alleged to be due is $3,948.05. It covers a farm of 103 acres in Hickory township. The amount of the original mortgage was $3900.

Petition for a special order directing service of a writ of scire facias by registered mail in the Friday estate has been presented to court. R. C. Shoemaker obtained two judgments against the estate of George P. Friday, of which George Friday and Earl Friday are the executors. R. C. Sheomaker died testate, and his son, Emmet A. Shoemaker, was appointed executor, and the scire facias is issued by him against the Friday estate. One of the heirs of the latter, Ruth L. Wismasser, lives in Warren, O., and service by registered mail is directed against her.

Judge R. L. Hildebrand has handed down an opinion in the case of A. W. Phillips against G. M. Maxwell in which the title to an automobile in dispute is found to be in G. M. Maxwell, and judgment is rendered in his favor. The case was one in which a dispute arose as to whether or not J. N. Patterson had authority from Phillips by whom he was employed, to enter into an agreement with reference to the sale of the car. The court finds that he had. The case was presented to the court for disposition under an agreement of counsel.

In making a reduction of one-half mill in the county taxes, the Lawrence county commissioners have followed the example of Butler county where a reduction was also made of one mill as compared to last year. The assessed valuation of the two counties is nearly the same, Butler's assessed valuation being $65,000,000, as around the same figures in Lawrence county. Butler levied 3½ mills for the general fund this year and 3½ mills for the poor fund. Lawrence county's general expenses run higher than in Butler. Butler's bonded debt is also lower.

Mercer county has an assessed valuation of $6,000,000, with a bonded debt of $2,648,000. Millage has not been officially fixed for this year, but it is understood that it will be the same as last year, 12 mills. Mercer's cost of prisoners in penal institutions is around $50,000 a year, as against $33,750 for Lawrence county.

Beaver county's assessed valuation is $100,000,000, with a debt of $4,714,000. Beaver levied eight mills for county purposes, one and one-half for poor and one-half mill for tuberculosis expeditures.

Comparison of valuations and millages of other counties is liable to be misleading, however, unless it were known how valuations compare with actual values of properties. Under the law real estate is supposed to be assessed at a fair sale value, but there are all kinds of deviations from this rule.

Over 90 per cent of the permits to carry firearms issued by Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard during the past year were to hunters. In all 108 permits were issued. Hunters generally get their permits when the deer hunting season opens, as a small arm comes in handy in case a hunter gets in a tight place with a wounded deer. The firearms act is not very well understood by a great many people. Under the law, to carry either on the person or in an automobile a shotgun with a barrel less than 24 inches, or rifle with barrel of less than 15 inches, and pistols and revolvers of less than 12 inches, it is necessary to obtain a license either from the sheriff or the police authorities. To purchase a weapon application for its purchase must be made to the dealer 48 hours before the weapon is delivered. The dealer must notify the police of his receipt of the application within six hours. A permit to carry a revolver is good for one year from the date of issue. License is granted only if it appears that the applicant has good reason to fear injury to himself, or his property, or for hunting purposes. In both instances the sheriff must be satisfied that the applicant is a suitable person to be licensed.

"Hex" Probe Has Run Into Block

Believers In Strange Mystic Rites Hinder Investigation by District Attorney

(International News Service)

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Feb. 22.—Lycoming county's believers in the strange rites of "Hex" doctoring today hindered District Attorney John C. Youngman's drive against "pow wow" doctors by withholding from authorities information necessary for presecutions.

As has frequently occurred in other sections of the state when such drives were attempted, believers in the strange witchery of spells and "hexes" sealed their lips and declined to reveal the secrets of their superstititious beliefs.

Youngman's drive resulted from the butcher knife slashing of James Lerox Fritz, eight months old, by his brother, John, Jr., 5, from whom a woman" faith healer" had driven a "mischievous devil" or "hex." The infant continued to improve in the Williamsport hospital.

Japan To File Charges Against Three Americans

Criminal Charges Arise Out Of Trouble At Osaka, Japan

(International News Service)

TOKIO, Feb. 22.—Criminal charges, a foreign office spokesman revealed today, are to be brought against three astonished Americans whose alleged maltreatment at the hands of Osaka police has raised a storm of protest in the imperial diet and in diplomatic quarters.

R. H. K. Irvin, head of the Osaka branch of an American syrup concern, and two employees, John Scott and William Palmroth, will be charged with criminal assault, it was announced. Papers have already been handed to the prosecutor for action in securing an indictment.

Police said the Americans had to be forced to accompany them to the police station after a quarrel with two Koreans.

Irvin, who plans to take legal action against the Koreans, said they attempted to extort money from him in his office, and that when police arrived, the Americans were hauled through the streets with their hands tied with rope.

Sextuplets Are Now Reported

(International News Service)

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 22—A negro woman on the African gold coast is the mother of a set of sextuplets, Dr. Edward A. Schauman of Philadelphia told the Orleans Medical Society.

As far as he knows, Dr. Schuman told the meeting, the sextuplets are still alive.

The information came to him, he told the doctors, from a medical missionary now living in Accra. The missionary sent a photograph of the sextuplets with the added information that the mother and her children were in good health eight days after the six were born.

Miner Is Lucky, Box Of Dynamite Fails To Explode

(International News Service)

MT. CARMEL, Pa. Feb. 22—Matro Stein of Nesquehoning, a miner who works for the Lehigh Navigation Coal Company, today considered himself the "luckiest man in the world." So did a lot of his fellow workers.

Carrying a box of dynamite, he missed his footing and tumbled 30 feet down a mine chute. Fellow workers scrambled to seek safety from an explosion they felt sure would wreck that part of the mine. There was no explosion and Stein picked himself up with nothing more than a bruised knee.

Legislature To Be In Session For Long Time

Mountain of Bills Is Steadily Rising To The Two Thousand Mark

LIQUOR STORE PROBE NOW HOLDING BOARDS

By SYDNEY H. EIGES
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22.—As the program now stands, Pennsylvania legislators expect to remain in session until next summer's sun starts beating down on the green domed capitol.

With the mountain of bills steadily rising to the 2,000 mark and only one, an emergency measure, passed and signed by the governor, Speaker Wilson G. Sarig's once expressed hope for a businesslike 100-day session has gone limmering.

Action on Gov. George H. Earle's $203,000,000 program of new taxes will be delayed by hearings on the more controversial of the measures. Governor Earle himself cautioned house Democratic leaders against undue haste in passing the measures and directed that hearings be held on all bills against which there has been substantial protest.

As an economy measure, Rep. Frank W. Ruth, Berks, chairman of the ways and means committee to which the tax bills were referred, decided to hold hearings while the bills were in committee, thus saving the heavy printing costs entailed by amendments after the bills have reached the floor.

Legislative action for the moment has been overshadowed by the house investigation of the state liquor stores which is expected to produce several sensations.

The house has passed a bill appropriating $25,000 for costs of the investigation but the measure faces a rocky road in the senate. Republicans, protesting the expenditure of that sum principally for counsel fees, failed in their attempts to reduce the bill to $10,000.

Hearings continue in the senate on the administration's constitution bill with little expectation action will be taken in time to permit election of delegates at a special balloting to be held May 14 under terms of the measure. The administration was considering a plan to force quicker action on the bill which has been in the senate for several weeks.

The first bill of the 1935 session to be signed by the governor was the Thompson senate bill postponing sheriff's sales for two years. Because of the urgency, the measure was passed quickly by both houses and takes effect at once. Most tax sales were scheduled for February.

Two of the administration labor bills have already hurdled the house and are now in senate committees. They were the Coolahan bill repealing the industrial police act and the Harmuth bill prohibiting private employment of deputy sheriffs and other law enforcement officers. Similar bills were introduced by the Republican minority in accordance with the party platform.

Speaker Sarig sees little likelihood or a four or five-day legislative week until most of the administration's, labor and social security bills have been acted upon. With these off the legislative calendar, administration leaders will loose a flood of controversial measures now pent up in committee.

"Peter Heals A Lame Man"

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Acts 3:6—"Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Feb. 24 is Acts 3:1-4:31, especially 3:1-10; 4:8-12, the Golden Text being 3:6, Then Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee.")

TRUE RELIGION has always shown itself interested in relieving the suffering and providing for human need all about its temples. It has built its temples first and proceeded immediately to build its schools, hospitals, orphanages and homes for the aged. Love of humanity goes with love of God as the two sides of the coin of religion. So this man "knew where his bread was buttered" when for much of those forty and more years of his in firmity he "was carried and laid daily at the door of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple."

"He gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something from them."

Ministry To The Needy

With 1,500,000 so-called "unemployables" to be transferred from federal relief rolls to other agencies for support this lesson suggests plenty of fields for the church's ministry of serving love. True, we may have to say to them as Peter said to the "unemployable" of our lesson "Silver and gold I have none." However, let us not stop there, but go on and say, "but what I have, that give I thee. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk." "And he took him by the right hand, and raised him up; and immediately his feet and anklebones received strength. And leaping up, he stood, and began to walk; and he entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping and praising God." So today, regarding these millions on relief, let us recall Christ's word, "Man doth not live by bread alone." Physical relief must be provided, but much more is needed in the way of ministering courage and hope to the despondent to maintain self-respect and restore to self-support. The cheering word and helping hand extended to lift folks up to stand on their own feet is where the church must supplement the state's relief.

The Church's Opportunity

Such a challenge accepted created for Peter and John the church's opportunity to proclaim its gospel as "all the people ran together unto them in the porch greatly wondering." Peter accepted the challenge and preached to them Jesus Christ and him cruicified and risen, and demanded of them "Repent ye therefore, and turn again, that your sins may be blotted out that so there may come seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord." Such seasons of refreshing are sorely needed today and can come only from the preaching of the gospel. And the church that extends the helping hand and ecouraging neighbors now will find unprecedented opportunities for evangelism.

Bitter Campaign Expected In Fall

Democrats And Republicans Girding Their Loins For Lycoming Fight

(International News Service)

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Feb. 22.—The law of averages has been proved again—in Lycoming county politics.

In the ten major county offices for which Republicans and Democrats already are girding for a bitter campaign next fall, the two parties today stand exactly even in campaigns won and lost over the last 30 years.

Of 80 possible chances to get into office during that time, Republicans have won 40 times and Democrats the same.

Offices for which local statisticians compiled the figues over the 30 year period are the three commissioners, three auditors, sheriff, treasurer, register and recorder and prothonotary.

Figures for the 30 year period show that the law of averages also held true for the office of commissioners, sheriff and treasurer—12 Republicans and 12 Democrats winning for commissioner, four Republicans and four Democrats for sheriff and four Republicans and four Democrats for treasurer.

The 30 year period represents eight elections for these county offices, for the four year term did not begin until 1912. Previously, it had been three.

Democrats have won a majority of times in two of the offices—auditor and recorder. Democrats winning 13 of the 24 times for auditor and five of the eight times for recorder. The Republican lead in the office of prothonotary is six to two.

CAN PLAY FIRST TIME IN ELEVEN YEARS

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22.—For the first time in her life, 11-year-old Virginia Caquatto is playing with her neighborhood friends and enjoying the normal pleasures of girlhood.

Born with lockjaw, Virginia was handicapped from birth. Until three months ago, there appeared to be no treatment that would effect a cure. But modern medical science finally triumphed, scoring another unique scientific victory.

Recently Virginia was released from the hospital, nearly cured. Electrical treatments are expected to bring about her complete recovery within a year.

The Century of Progress Exposition had an attendance of almost 39,000,000, and it paid off all but $600,000 of its $10,000,000 gold note issue.

HE-MAN

by Harold Kathman

The story of a woman-wise young man and a man-weary girl, and what happened when Fate trapped them —alone!—in the middle of the sea.

Illustrated by A. G. SKRENDA

McClure Fiction

"And you thought you could turn the boat around while I was asleep . . ." He leaned back, laughing. His laughter was knocked back into his throat by a firm, brownish hand.

BRAD DAVIS stopped thinking of how much he disliked Manila, and looked at over-rouged, heavily mascara-d Nanita, sitting across the table from him. He figured that it was about two-thirty in the morning. Eight hours of stupid dashing from bar to bar with this misguided nit-wit, he told himself. For what?

Brad wearily rubbed his forehead. No use trying to find The Reason for It All at this stage of the game. After a fellow makes a sap of himself for "one of the most popular buds of the New York season"—and gets laughed at for his ardor—he has no right to think. And after he throws up his chances to be a crack copy writer to sail around the world in a small yawl to forget, he ought to get a kick in the pants wherever he lands.

"I'm getting out of here." Brad swayed to his feet, threw money on the table and stumbled to the door.

He felt nauseous. Not physically sick exactly. Mentally sour. He leaped into a rickety carameta and shocked the Filipino driver into action with his shout "To the Harbor!"

He leaned his whirling head against the jouncing seat. The tide was going out. He'd go out with it. On to Saigon! On to Hong Kong! On to anywhere!

BRAD awoke slowly. He was in the cockpit of the GULLIBLE all right. It had been brilliant moonlight when he had set sail. Now the sun was hot above the sea's rim. The GULLIBLE had sailed perfectly as he had steered out of Manila Bay, if he remembered correctly. Now, she was threatening to yaw. He squinted forward.

A girl in a crumpled white linen suit, her black hair streaming in the wind, was trying to pull the jib to the starboard side of the boat.

"Get the hell away from that sail!" he bellowed.

She let go instantly. Brad noted she was tall and slender. Her face was slender, too. Finely made and deeply tanned. She was angry, plenty. Her dark eyes told Brad that. Well, he'd tell this dame a few things about sailing. Fiddling with a jib, like that.

"Turn this boat back to Manila immediately!" she demanded.

Brad looked over his shoulder. The hazy bulk of Point Luzon was twenty miles away.

"I should have known better than to have trusted you!" she continued.

"You trusted me? What for?"

"That's what I'd like to know. You were probably so drunk you didn't know what you were saying."

Brad looked at her wonderingly.

"Don't try to think. Just turn this boat around and take me back."

It suddenly occurred to him that this girl was ordering him about on his own boat. "Say, who do you think you are?"

The girl agitatedly stepped down into the cockpit. "I'm the girl you told to go aboard this boat last night and sleep. You assured me that you'd not be on it until noon. I can't expect you to think back too far. But try to remember. You and your girl friend were standing near the Old Moat. You both were tight. You were pointing out into the bay, and saying something about 'Long Island Sound' as I walked past. I stopped and asked you if you were a New Yorker. I told you that I was one, that I was stranded in Manila, and that I was afraid to go to the authorities because I jumped my contract on a round-the-world cruise. . . ."

"Oh! I remember . . . Nanita wanted to beat you up. . . ."

"Yes. You thought I was a street walker, too. Then you thought I was a panhandler. And when I began to cry, you grew maudlin. Swore that we were brothers and sisters under the skin, under the good old Red, White and Blue. And then you told me to fix myself something to eat and to sleep on your boat in the harbor. So here I am."

"And you thought you could turn the boat around while I was asleep by tugging on the jib. . ." He leaned back, laughing. His laughter was knocked back into his throat by a firm, brownish hand.

He frowned down at her as he stood up. "I hate melodramatic women."

"And I hate he-men show-offs. Let go of my arm."

"Not until we get some things straight. First of all, I'm not going back to Manila. I hate the place, and there's nothing for you there but grief. You're lucky to be on this boat. You won't have to fight for your honor, or your dishonor, or whatever it is that women fight for. I'm no Sea Wolf. I'm not interested, that's all." He released her. "We'll be in Hong Kong in a week, or two, or three. You can bunk in the cabin. I'll sleep in the forepeak."

"I'd rather be in Manila, thank you." She met his eyes. "I'm asking you for the last time, are you going to take me back?"

"For the last time. NO!"

"Then I'll swim." She stepped to the deck and teetered on the rail. Brad leaped and swung his arm like a bronze hook around her waist. She slipped down and her legs dragged a plume of spray over them both. His shoulder muscles cracked as he pulled her up to the deck.

"Of all the stubborn idiots! Look at that. . ." He pointed to a dorsal fin slicing the water in the wake of the boat. "Just waiting for some hamburger like you. Twenty miles from shore, an ocean full of sharks, and you want to swim. Are you crazy?"

The girl stood plucking her wet skirt from her body. "Not crazy enough to stay on this boat."

"You won't be on it long if it takes any more of this Flying Cadona stuff." He sat facing her. "Look, won't you listen to reason. . ."

IF you're going to try to sell me the idea of staying, save the wear and tear on your technique. My round-the-world trip started with a lovely presentation, too. I wanted to do something different after college instead of the usual trip to Europe, and along came Mr. Perry Chancey. He was going to lead a flock of tourists around the globe. I was to be his secretary. We'll I've just had a long six weeks of ducking kisses in the dark and breaking strangle holds in passage-ways. That's why I let the boat sail without me in Manila. I'm not going through that again."

"You should have had more sense than to trust a fellow with a name like Perry Chancey."

"He'd probably say the same thing about you, if he knew your name."

"The name is Bradford W. Davis. Brad to those I don't owe money to."

"Suppose we stop this chummy tete-a-tete. If you insist on keeping me here, I'll do everything I can to wreck this boat, or make you go back."

Brad grunted with disgust and started for the cabin. "You can try all kinds of tricks on me, but don't pick on the boat. I think more of it than I do of myself."

"That seems impossible!"

He dived into the cabin. In the cool gloom he wondered why he insisted on getting himself further into this mess. The girl, he was positive, would make the trip miserable. He'd lose only a day in putting her ashore . . . .but she'd have the laugh on him then. And how she would laugh! He could see her. . .That settled it. He'd not be the cause for another woman's joke.

Feeling sorry for himself, Brad lighted the primus stove under a pot of coffee, gathered up a shirt, a pair of dungarees and a pair of sneakers. He climbed into the cockpit.

"You'd better change your wet clothes," he said, "Here are some things of mine. They'll probably be slack in the wrong places, but they'll be modest."

She took the clothing and went below without a word. He was vaguely uneasy as she closed the hatch. He glanced at the compass, the tiller and the set of the sails. She hadn't tinkered with any of them.

The girl came on deck after an interminable time, it seemed to Brad. She looked like a school girl. He caught himself ready to say, "You don't look half-bad." Instead he said: "I'll bet the coffee darned near boiled away. You were down there long enough to get a permanent wave."

She walked forward to the mast and sat on deck, as though he hadn't spoken.

"I hope you'll open your mouth to eat breakfast," he flung at the back of her head. He wasn't used to silence from women. He thumped below, calling himself names for being a damned fool. In another moment he was frantically shutting off the fresh water spigot. It had been wide-open. The precious liquid was brimming over the tiny sink and was cascading into the bilges.

Brad started for the hatchway. Of all the sneaking, low-down, mean tricks. . . . Hold on! No use letting her know how much she bothered him. She didn't know that there was another tank full of water. He'd act as though nothing was wrong, and just sail on. Let her worry. And smiling with self-satisfaction, Brad unscrewed the handle from the spigot, to avoid a duplicate of the stunt, and made breakfast.

IT was sundown of the third day out, before they spoke to each other. The girl lay at full length on the port cockpit seat. Brad was half-reclining on the starboard side, smoking.

"Strange, that we two should be out in the middle of the ocean on the underside of the world like this."

"The only strange part of it all is, that you're not up to some of your nifty tricks."

"I was coming to that. I'm not going to try any more. That is if we keep on being as formal to each other as we have been."

"Glad to hear it."

"These last two days have been so quiet and deliciously lazy. I've enjoyed them in spite of myself."

"You could wash the dishes occasionally. I'm tired of being the mess boy."

"I'll start tomorrow. Let me help sail, too."

Long period of silence.

"You seem to [illegible] such a business of this trip. You do certain things every day, as though you were paid for it."

"You are positive that I am not."

"I know—at least, I think I know—why you do things so grimly."

"Pray, enlighten me, your pupil."

"You have set your mind to do this thing. That means a woman."

"A female Walter Winchell!"

"Then the name of this yawl is the GULLIBLE. Sounds as though you pitied yourself."

"Mrs. Sherlock Holmes."

"You're embarrassed now. That proves it is a woman."

"I could have told you as much, without all your involved deduction."

"I'm glad you didn't. It's much more fun deducing."

"Have you deduced how much fresh water we've got left?"

"Oh, I almost forgot about that. Did you find out what I did?"

He glared at her. "No. I've been wandering around in a pink haze ever since you came on board."

"Admirable self-control!"

"You can't imagine how delectable you are in those oversize pants. . ."

The girl arose, muttered something about "a boor," and flounced into the cabin.

Brad smiled to himself. Get below a woman's priggishness, he told himself, and they're defenseless. Give their pride a jolt, and they resort to calling names.

He remembered his lost love in New York. The ache in his heart was not nearly as poignant as it had been.

THE girl didn't sleep well that night. Twice she peered through a slit in the hatch, and saw him braced next to the tiller, with spray streaming from his sou'wester and slicker, fighting rain and wind.

She awoke late. Wet tracks across the cabin floor told her that Brad had been in the cabin not long before. A pot of coffee was coming to a boil on the galley stove. Poor boy, up all night and no food. She'd surprise him by fixing breakfast.

It was hard work trying to get the breakfast together. While she was jiggling back and forth, she wondered how she had looked helplessly asleep, as Brad came through the cabin. "Silly," she chided herself, "wondering if I looked like a soap-ad, in the middle of a gale."

She slid back the hatch and staggered into the cockpit precariously balancing a cup of coffee, a bowl of prunes and some hot-cakes on a pie-tin. Brad shouted "Good morning!" as she appeared. A huge sea was piling up behind him. Higher and higher it mounted. Brad saw the fear in her eyes.

"Watch it disappear," he laughed.

And sure enough it did. The GULLIBLE seemed to lift her stern and tuck the great wave under her. They assumed a distressingly downward angle, and then pitched upward suddenly. Brad caught the girl and the breakfast in his arms.

"Careful, lady," he smiled, "the food." Her body was firm, smooth under the rough clothing. Her cheek was close to his lips. He had an insane desire to kiss it. He seized the cup of coffee instead.

The girl straightened and bumped her head against the main boom, lashed amidships. She looked up at the big beam of wood straining at its closely hauled sheets. "What would happen if that got loose?" she shouted over the howling wind.

"Not a chance. . ."

Just then the boom flung itself free. With a wild sweep to leeward it crashed into the side of a monster wave. The GULLIBLE shivered. Brad dropped the cup, grabbed a coil of line from under the cockpit seat and stood up. The girl stood beside him. "Get down, you fool!" he yelled.

"Don't call me a fool!"

The boom came whistling back. Brad was passing the line through a ring-bolt when he saw the girl defiantly upright. With a brutal shove he knocked her down to the deck. The boom, dripping wet, swept over them. Brad managed to get a turn about it with the line. He hauled with all his might. The girl scrambled to her feet, eyes snapping.

Snubbed in its wild fling, the runaway timber hung balanced for a moment. Then the lunge of the boat sent it hurtling back. Brad crouched, tense. If he missed this time, the GULLIBLE would broach-to, and take the water-mountains on her deck. She'd crack up. He held a loop of the line ready. Then he saw the girl's glistening black head in the boom's path. He jumped and bore her down. She felt a shock run through the man's body as he crushed her out of the way. Staggeringly he arose. The boom hung momentarily above them. Desperately he passed the line over and over it. He made it fast to a cleat. Then he fell headlong into the cockpit.

"All right, He-Man," she panted, "get up. It's all over."

The slicker-clad form did not move. From under the sou'wester a thin trickle of blood dripped to the floor.

HE was in the cabin when he came to. His head seemed to be a ball of fire. He groaned. From out of the night came a dark form. He had visions that the form came many times after that. On each occasion he felt cool hands, hot drink, a soothing presence. Once he threw off the blankets and tried to stand up. He was on his hands and knees on the cabin floor when the girl discovered him.

"Get back into that bed this instant!"

"'Taint a bed. It's a bunk."

She handled him like a baby. He lay back smiling.

The next day the two of them were engaged in navigation. The girl steadied him as he shot the sun.

"You know, I'm glad you're up and around again. It was horribly lonesome the past few days."

"Didn't like the watery waste, eh?"

"I did and I didn't. If it wasn't for those dark hours just before dawn, I think I'd like everything about this sort of travel."

"Poor kid. Must have had a tough time."

Brad was startled to see a flush deepen the tan of her neck.

BRAD lay sprawled among cushions on the deck. "Ye gods, I wish I could help you."

The girl was straining at the mainsail halliards. She stopped long enough to gasp: "If you don't keep quiet, I'll box your ears!"

They smiled at each other. It was getting to be a habit. Her browbeating, and their smiling. He felt much stronger, but she insisted on treating him like an invalid.

Brad joined her at the mast, despite her threats. "Let me hold this while you bring the peak up," he apologized, grasping the throat halliards. She heaved twice, and looked proudly aloft.

"Right?"

"Right!"

They bent down to make the lines fast at the same time, shoulder to shoulder. The girl finished first and hurriedly walked toward the bow. Brad followed her.

"You know," he said huskily, "I don't even know your name."

"Oh, look! There's a freighter. It's the second since we've been to sea."

"American," he said abruptly, referring to the steamer. "I guess you didn't hear me before. . ."

"Yes I did."

"I guess a fellow ought to know the name of the girl he's had for a nurse."

"If that's the only reason, I guess you have a right to know. My name is Joan Hollis."

"Joan, Jo-an," he rolled the word. "Nice name, but not a nice remark. About my having a right to know for the 'only reason.' I've got another reason."

"Hmmmm?"

"I'm going to put you aboard that freighter."

"You are not!"

"Oh, yes I am."

"You're not man enough."

"Think I'm still weak, do you?"

"I know you are. I forbid you to exert yourself."

Brad's deep-throated laughter was disconcerting.

"Do you know what the skipper of that freighter can do?"

"I'm not up on maritime law."

Brad's muscles snapped into action this time. Joan was imprisoned in his arms. She struggled just enough.

"Won't you? . . . darling Joan?"

In another moment, the two of them were frantically searching for an American Flag in the locker. They hoisted it upside down. The universal signal of distress at sea.

Character Is Foundation Of School System

Point Is Stressed On Anniversary Of the Birth Of George Washington

By JOHN W. SCOTZIN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22.—Pennsylvania educators stressing character development as the foundation of the school curriculum were advised today by Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, of the "tremendous" possibilities to further their aims in the observance of Washington's birthday.

Dramatization in all periods of child development and varying with their degree of maturity plays an important part in impressing upon children the desirable qualities of character Dr. Rule believes. Children in the intermediate grades, he said, are quick to respond to the imaginative appeal of a dramatic character.

"Activities in the school, centered around the study of a man of great nobility of character, whose record of service to the state, of devotion to human welfare of personal sacrifice to the common good is unsurpassed in the annals of our nation, provide living exemplification of a personality worthy of emulation," he declared.

Illustrating his point, Dr. Rule said the teachers' stories in the early grades usually focus the attention of children upon desirable traits possessed by Washington, such as industry, loyalty, honesty, and truthfulness, adding "Questions may be raised for discussion with the children which will indicate how the character and attitude of Washington made him great. Young boys and girls are quite able to build up authentic conceptions of steadfastness, courage, and service.

"In the modern school, socialized procedures are being more and more emphasized. No character in our history possessed in greater measure those qualities of character, self-direction, self-reliance, and self-control which we are attempting to encourage through our informal program of pupil participation in classroom activities.

"No content is more saturated with worthwhile material for the discussion and debate of boys and girls than is the service of Washington to his fellow countrymen."

The dramatization of episodes from the life of Washington must not necessarily take the form of a difficult and finished product in the school, according to Dr. Rule, but may be used to advantage in developing the extemperaneous expression growing out of the discussion in social studies period. He explained:

"Such dramatizations from the life of Washington are productive of real and lasting values. No child can become sufficiently acquainted with the precise and effective expression of our great national hero without increased respect for the beauty of the mother tongue.

"No child can attempt to express by his characterization the dignity, grace, and composure of Washington without having a definite influence left upon his own character. No child can study and attempt to interpret the attitude of Washington to his associates without having outcomes in terms of better human relationships in his own life."

Financing Policy Undergoes Change

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—An important change in treasury financing policy, including the issuance for the first time of nine months discountable bills, was announced Thursday by Secretary Morgenthau.

Beginning Monday the treasury will issue weekly for an indefinite period $50,000,000 in six months bills and $50,000,000 in nine months bills

Through this method, $325,000,000 in new money will be "picked up" during the next three months.

Something of a surprise was occasioned by the statement that Morgenthau will seek no cash at the march 15 financing.

He said the treasury hoped to "squeeze through" until June 15 without seeking cash other than that obtained through the bill issue.

On March 15, a little more than a half billion dollars in 2½ per cent notes will mature. Also the treasury may make an issue of securities to retire the $1,875,000,000 in 4¼ Four Liberty bonds that have been called for April 15. Morgenthau said so far no decision had been reached as to the refunding of these securities.

RIBS IN HER NECK

(International News Service)

SYDNEY—A woman who had two ribs in her neck is in Parramatta Hospital, New South Wales, where surgeons succeeded in removing one of them. She has the usual 12 ribs on each side up to the chest bone and two "extras" at the back and sides of her neck. She had never been troubled by the extra ribs, but paralysis suddenly began in the arms and hands, and an X-ray picture revealed the abnormality.

Now Fighting For 'Hated' Railroad

(International News Service)

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 22 — When the "Leaky Roof" railroad was a going concern its patrons cussed it openly frequently consigning the whole works to utter damnation.

Now that the interstate commerce commission has ordered abandonment of the line which runs from Stanley, Kan. to Clinton, Mo., the patrons have transferred their wrath to the I. C. C.

Some 10,000 of the persons who became mildly exasperated at the line's service and the leaky roofs of it's rolling equipment from which it derived its sobriquet, have signed a petition demanding that the abandonment order be set aside.

Slayer Dies In Electric Chair

Slayer Of Prison Keeper Goes To Death With Smile And Is Unnerved

(International News Service)

OSSINING, N. Y., Feb. 22.—The grim death chair at Sing Sing prison today had claimed another victim—this time a man who didn't fear it, who openly courted its embrace.

He was Vincent De Leo, 30, of New York, who several weeks ago wrote a letter to Warden Lewis E. Lawes requesting that no steps be taken to save him from paying the supreme penalty for stabbing to death a keeper in Clinton prison, where he was serving a term for robbery.

Escorted by two guards, De Leo entered the death room calmly and walked to the chair without speaking to or glancing at any of the witnesses present. He was pronounced dead four minutes after he was strapped into the chair.

Prehistoric Race Of Men 15 Inches Believed "Myth"

Fail To Find Fossil Remains Of Race Of Ancient Men Near Cadnagar, Baroda

(International News Service)

BOMBAY, Feb. 22.—That "great anthropological discovery" of "fossil remains of a prehistoric race of men only 15 inches high" near Vadnagar, Baroda, turned out today to be the probable product of an old Hindu custom.

It seems that the Hindus have a superstition that spreading a false rumor helps a domestic crisis. Something not unlike that which appears to be sometimes tried in western nations, too.

Either someone started the world-wide spread of the dwarf story as a practical joke, authorities said, or the Hindus were merely trying their economic rope trick.

Officials here were so overwhelmed with cabled enquiries from all over the world that they ordered a strict investigation of the alleged fossil discovery. No such find had been made, they ascertained.

Ickes Assails Naval Program

Says Relief Money Can Be Spent To Better Advantage Than On Ships

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—There are better ways of relieving unemployment through public works than by spending the money for building navy ships, Secretary of the Interior Ickes said today.

The trouble with building ships, the secretary told the senate munitions committee today is that the money sifts out to the workers more slowly than in other types of works.

Senator Nye (R) of North Dakota, chairman of the committee, sought to have Ickes answer but did not succeed.

"As public works administrator," Nye asked Ickes, "If the allocation of funds had been exclusively yours to choose, would you have allocated funds to the navy?"

"Senator," replied Ickes, "I don't think I ought to be asked that. I'd like to be excused from answering it."

Nye changed the question.

"But," he went on, "You have found other ways in which you believe the money might better be employed?"

"Yes, I have," said Ickes.

When "They Shall Not Pass!" Became Famous in World War

General Henri Petain — General de Castlenau

Crosses at Verdun battlefield.

A PHRASE made famous during the World war was "They Shall Not Pass!" It cannot be attributed definitely to any particular person, but it is said to have been originated probably by General Robert Nivelle in a war order of 1916 in which he said: "You will not let them pass, my comrades." This, of course, is not quite the same as the famous phrase, which leads some to give General Henri Petain credit for the saying. According to one popular story, General de Castlenau went to Verdun for a conference with General Petain, in command at Verdun, to determine whether to defend or abandon the fortress. De Castlenau, opposing the idea of retreating and giving Verdun to the Germans, said: "They must not pass." Whereupon, General Petain replied quickly, "They shall not pass!"

MOTHERS! Ovaltine is a pure food concentrate approved by more than 20,000 doctors. It is highly valued because of the very noticeable increases in both weight and nerve poise which so frequently occur when Ovaltine is added to the regular daily fare.

Recent scientific tests conducted with 48 school children in New York showed a decrease in nervousness, in some cases, of 25% in 2 weeks (as measured by the Olson-University of Minnesota checking system)—when Ovaltine was added to the diet.

For the sake of your child, try Ovaltine. You simply give it mixed with milk—either hot or cold—and children love its delicious taste. You can obtain it at any drug or grocery store—or mail the coupon for a trial supply.

SCHOOL REUNION MUCH ENJOYED

Lincoln-Garfield Former Pupils Gather In Reunion Last Night

Days of long ago were relived Thursday evening when the Lincoln-Garfield Club held its annual midwinter reunion in the basement of the Elks Home, on North Mill St. About 75 were present, with a number of guests from out of town.

With the retiring president Chas. E. McGrath in the chair a business meeting was first held. At this meeting Coy Cole was elected president and Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard vice president. Edward J. Ryan was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

The retiring president then turned the gavel over to the newly elected president and a program of entertainment was enjoyed. The Keystone Quartet pleased with several selections. The quartet was composed of Lewis Sweet, Bert Sanford, Chester Biddle and David Jones. Mr. Jones also directed the crowd in pep singing.

President Cole than called upon the following for short addresses: Daniel J. Reeble, Ivan Wetmore, Raymond McBride, David Stokes, James Carlisle, Edward D. Reese, Warren Weide, Richard Crane, Wm. Crane and Harry Brown.

William E. Francis was the main speaker of the evening and reminisced on days of other years when he attended Lincoln-Garfield. He urged the members to expand their activities, to build their membership up and to utilize the organization for the betterment of New Castle. His address was enjoyed by the men present.

The organization decided to hold its mid-summer reunion in July at Lakewood Beach. This meeting is for the wives and families of the members and is always attended by a large crowd.

When the news story refers to capital and labor, it means ten rich guys and a fellow who represents one-fortieth of the workers.

Mellon Case Is Adjourned Today

Will Be Resumed On Monday In Federal Court At Pittsburgh

MANY DISCLOSURES DURING TESTIMONY

By WILLIAM J. KELLY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22.—In observance of Washington's birthday, doors of federal court swung closed today while counsel for Andrew W. Mellon gathered evidence to disapprove government charges that he falsified his 1931 income tax and illegally assumed his post as secretary of the treasury in 1921.

Sensational disclosures of involved financial dealings appeared on the record when members of the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals ordered hearings adjourned until Monday. Mellon wants a $139,045 refund on his 1931 income tax while the government, claiming he underpaid, seeks $3,089,261 in deficiencies and penalties.

Uppermost in the minds of counsel for both sides as they plotted strategies was testimony designed to show that through "non-bona fide" stock sales Mellon never actually qualified for his treasury post. Furthermore, frequent "trans-Atlantic telephone calls" were made by Mellon to his associates here while the financier represented United States at the Court of St. James's, his confidential secretary admitted.

From Mellon's own accounts the secretary, Howard M. Johnson, testified that bank stock sales made by the late Richard B. Mellon, Andrew's brother, were credited on the books of the then cabinet member. The sales were additions to a $10,250,495 block of bank stock which Andrew sold his brother before becoming treasury secretary and which Richard later transferred to Paul Mellon, Andrew's son.

Permits Wide Latitude

R. H. Van Fossan, tax board chairman, removed the "check rein" from government counsel by permitting wide latitude on testimony concerning financial transactions between the brothers. Immediately, government counsel Robert H. Jackson learned from Johnson of a $1,250,000 loan from Andrew to Richard. He also was advised interest paid by Richard to Andrew approximated dividends "R. B." received on the transferred bank stock.

Not only did "R. B." pay interest, with "interest on the interest" when payments were overdue, but the payments increased from an agreed amount of five and one-third per cent to eight per cent, Johnson disclosed. Jackson contends the interest increases matched dividend advances and that Mellon really received them as dividend payments on the bank stock during his 11-year treasury term.

Johnson, only the second witness to testify in the case which is expected to last another five weeks and bring other notables into the limelight, described stock transactions which Jackson claims were "shadow sales." He also told how during Mellon's absence in Washington and London, he "arranged" the interest increases which Richard agreed to pay.

It was this trusted secretary who previously admitted he failed to have Mellon's 1931 tax return properly notarized before the banker signed it. He also refused to accept subpoenas for Paul's records but Mellon's counsel has promised to produce them at the proper time.

FIREMAN CELEBRATES HIS 90TH BIRTHDAY

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22.—Believed to be the nation's oldest active fire fighter, Peter Knabe recently celebrated his 90th birthday anniversary at his Turtle Creek home, convinced that the secret of youth is "a good glass of beer, hard work and early to bed."

Chuckling at ideas that he might be considered "old," Knabe revealed that he still responds to fire alarms, and proudly confessed he "had been out" on a two-alarm blaze just a few nights before his birthday.

New Castle, Pa.

Dear Mr. Rentz:

The board of directors of the Young Women's Christian Association wish to express their appreciation of your service in making the musical comedy "Sunny Skies" possible.

You will be glad to know that we will clear about $500 again this year. This will be applied on the regular Y. W. C. A. budget which, as you know, had to be cut $2,700 after the chest campaign, last October.

If it were not for the goodwill of citizens like yourself we would have to stop most of the education and service work of the association.

Very sincerely yours,
MRS. A. B. FANKHAUSER,

New Castle High Football Card Completed

Gardner Announces Tough 1935 Program

Erie East, Chaney And Martins Ferry, Ohio Newcomers On "Hurricane" Card

Eight Night Games Are Listed, Five Of Them For Taggart Field This Fall

NEW CASTLE high school "Red Hurricane" football team will face one of the touhest schedules in the history of the school this fall, according to an announcement by Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner which calls for 11 games, seven at New Castle and four away from home. The season lid will be lifted September 13 with Braddock high playing here.

Three schools were dropped from the New Castle schedule, Turtle Creek, Clairton and Ellwood City. Three new schools to replace them will be Chaney of Youngstown, Martins Ferry, O., and Erie East high. There will be four class AA W. P. I. A. L. confernece games on the card as follows: Butler, Charleroi, Washington and New Kensington.

Attractive Schedule.

The first three games on the schedule are listed for Taggart field, this city, with all three of them being night battles. Then comes a day game Saturday, October 5, at Johnstown. Night games will be played with Washington here, Chaney here, and night games will be played at Erie East and possibly Charleroi, depending on the weather, November 1.

Sharon will be here on Thanksgiving Day. Warren, O., high will be the third game on the program and looks like tough meat for so early in the season.

Lose Many Veterans.

The schedule looks a lot tougher than one would imagine when you stop to think that such boys as Walter Raskowski, Chuck Fleming, Alec Shellogg, Fred Shellogg, Palkovitch and others will be missing when it comes time to assemble the grid candidates. There is considerable beef gone off of that front line. The backfield is rather well riddled.

Following is the completed schedule as announced by Gardner:

Sept. 13—Braddock here, night.
Sept. 20—Butler here, night.
Sept. 27—Warren here, night.
Oct. 5—At Johnstown, day.
Oct. 11—Washington here, night.
Oct. 18—Chaney high here, night.
Oct. 25—At Erie East, night.
Nov. 1—At Charleroi, night.
Nov. 9—Martins Ferry, O., here, day.
Nov. 16—At New Kensington, day.
Nov. 23.—Open permanently.
Nov. 28—Sharon high here, day.

New Castle At Butler Tonight

Ready For Big Race On Coast

Twenty Grand And Equipoise Ready For $100,000 Race At Santa Anita Track

By ARTHUR N. SUVERKRUP
International News Service Staff Correspondent

SANTA ANITA TRACK, Arcadia, Cal., Feb. 22—In just about 24 hours they will parade between 18 and 20 of America's finest thoroughbreds to the post at this million dollar track and about 24 hours plus a few seconds more than two minutes later, one of those horses will have grabbed the winner's share of the $100,000 purse for the Santa Anita handicap.

The thousands who will flock here tomorrow were inclined to favor the great champion of the turf Equipoise.

Even a majority of the turf experts agreed that "Equipoise" is the horse to beat."

Twenty Grand Ready

On the other hand Twenty Grand, that great champion of other days gave the experts and the mine run bettors something to think about when, under the guidance of Jockey Silvio Coucci, he worked the full handicap distance of one and one-quarter miles in 2:04. At that Coucci didn't push his charge.

This workout of Twenty Grand's also seemed to settle the question of whether Bill Brennan's horse is a sound one again. Often troubled with lameness after a hard run Twenty Grand didn't have the slightest limp as he was walked off the track.

Equipoise also was given a final workout, but it was a light one, and the champ was allowed to breeze along for the full distance of the handicap in 2:12.

Franklin High Plays Altoona

Ben Franklin Junior High school basketball team will play the Altoona DeMolays on the Franklin High court tonight, with the Ben Franklin High Faculty team engaging the Ben Franklin High Reserves in a preliminary game at 7:15 o'clock. The Altoona team is one of the finest of its kind in this part of the state and they expect to administer a defeat to the Wallacemen tonight.

Union Will Play Three Next Week

Union High school basketball team will play three floor games next week, according to Coach Davey Boyd. Tuesday the Karns City High team will play at Union. Wednesday Union will go to Ellwood City for a game, and Friday night, East Brook will appear at Union High floor.

THE SPORT PATROL

By JOHN J. MAHER, JR.

THE WINTER TURF HIGHLIGHT

Tomorrow afternoon all eyes of the racing world will be riveted on a new course near Los Angeles where a turf feature has attracted nation-wide interest due to its special highlights. The $100,000 Santa Anita handicap will be the richest race ever run in America.

The most fashionable field ever to go to the post at a winter race track will be out to win the rich purse. Twenty Grand, Equipoise, Time Supply, Head Play, High Glee, Jabot, Azucar, Riskulus, Gallant Sir, Good Goods, Mate, Gusto, Ladysman, and Mr. Khayyam are all horses well known to the turf fans.

And then, too, the C. V. Whitney, Norman W. Church, and Brookmeade stables are names that mean much in horse racing.

Equipoise and Mate will be striving to become the world's greatest money-winning horse. A victory at Santa Anita will place either of them ahead of Sun Beau's record of winning $376,744 over a five-year campaign in America. Equipoise has thus far earned $322,970, while Mate's winnings now total $298,950.

Besides the horses and stables of nation-wide renown, the jockeys present will also attract their share of attention. And practically all of the famous jockeys in the country are being called to the coast to ride in the big event.

Jackie Westrope, national jockey champion in 1933 when he rode more than 300 winners, will guide Riskulus. Moose Peters, jockey champion of 1934, will pilot Top Row for A. A. Boroni. Either Head Play or A. C. Bostwick's Mate will be ridden by Charley Kurtsinger. Charley was astride Head Play in 1933 when that horse won the Preakness.

Bobby Jones, now one of the nation's leading jockeys, will ride Good Goods, Calvacade's stablemate. He came to Santa Anita to ride Cavalcade but when the 1934 three-year-old champion was withdrawn, he was transferred to the other entry of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane.

Equipoise will be ridden by the veteran Raymond (Sonny) Workman as usual. Don Meade will handle the reins of Ted Clark, the Canadian sprinter. Gusto may have Eddie Arcaro, but it is not certain at this writing. Twenty Grand has a very capable jockey in Silvio Coucci, who rode Gillie to victory last Saturday.

Harry Richards, a veteran of more than ten years' experience, will be astride Ladysman. Tommy Luther has handled Time Supply successfully in the past and shall be depended upon this Saturday.

The race may result in a duel between the 7-year-old veterans, Equipoise and Twenty Grand. These two will probably be the favorites at post time, howover, there are many other horses with excellent chances of winning.

High Glee and Jabot, Whitney stablemates of Equipoise, have been especially impressive during the winter at Santa Anita where they have scored important victories.

Gusto, trained by the capable Max Hirsch, has come in for considerable publicity of late. He won the American derby and an Arlington classic in 1932 but had campaigned in England during the past year. To all appearances he was through as a major threat but recent reports say that, after training in South Carolina, he is once again sound and fit.

Time Supply is like the little girl who could at times be very good but was terrible when in the other frame of mind. The colt looked very impressive winning the $25,000 Bay Meadows handicap in December, but after that victory went into a slump from which he is only now recovering.

Head Play, beaten by a nose in the 1933 Kentucky Derby, has regained much of his lost prestige by winning the San Antonio handicap. Riskulus, backed heavily in the last Kentucky Derby, will be the hope of many who are looking for an upset.

Azucar, Ted Clark, Ladysman, Mr. Khayyam, Top Row, and Good Goods will also be close to the leaders in the betting odds. In all there will likely be 18 to 20 starters in the race.

So if you follow the "Sport of Kings," this race is certain to make your blood tingle. With so many outstanding horses featured it is difficult to choose the winner, however, the Patrol's selections include Equipoise, Time Supply and Head Play.

Negro Fighter Wins By Kayo

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 22.—Joe Louis, sensational young Detroit negro, continued his climb toward the top of the heavyweight ladder by knocking out Lee Ramage, San Diego, Cal., in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout last night at Wrigley Field before 15,000 fans.

Louis went after his white opponent at the tap of the gong, took the first round handily, and won the fight with a left hook to the adam's apple in the next round.

"I couldn't get my breath after Louis hit me," Ramage said. "It was the first time I'd ever been hit in the throat. I have no alibi to offer."

"Bill" Douglass Making Great Coaching Record

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Feb. 22.—Bill Douglass, captain and star forward on last year's Westminster college basketball team, is making a great record at Sykesville, Pa., high school. Bill's Sykesville high team has won 17 games in succession and has yet to be defeated.

Although there are four games yet to be played by the Sykesville five, the Douglass-coached machine has already won the class A championship. The team has scored 475 points to 241 by opponents in 17 contests. The district 9 PIAA title clinched, Sykesville still must face Falls Creek, last year's champs. Douglass is also starring on the Indiana Colonials, independent team, and scored 30 points in one game recently.

Winning Streak Of South Siders Snapped By Polish Boys—Mateja Proves Star

SLOSERNICK AND GENNOCK GOOD

An inspired K. Pulaski basketball team last night rose to the greatest heights of the year when they trounced a strong Humbert five of the South Side 42 to 37 at the Pulaski floor. A crowd that packed the floor to capacity, witnessed the battle. The seventeen straight victories for the Humberts was snapped off, by a fast breaking and accurate Pulaski quintet.

Mateja was the outstanding star for the Pulaskis with 18 of the points, and he also played a great floor game. Johnny Slosernick and M. Slosernick were towers of strength to the Pulaskis on the defense.

Pulaskis Lead

At the first half the Polish boys were leading 23 to 20. In the second half the Pulaskis again outscored the Humberts 19 to 17. The Humberts tried hard but could not match the smoothness and accurate shooting of the former Union Ex-High stars. Mateja played his best game of the season at center. The Oaklanders were worthy of their fine victory. They deserved it.

N. Gennock and Zingaro led the attack for the Humberts, but could not approach the inspired and hard fighting Pulaskis.

The game was one of the best of the short season at the Pulaski floor and caused considerable excitement. The Pulaskis were the underdogs in the battle, but emerged victorious and with a warning to other floor teams to look out.

Pennsylvania Is One Of Ten Asking Increased Gas Tax

Other States Have Proposals In View To Reduce Gasoline Taxes

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
Special Washington Correspondent New Castle News

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 22.—Pennsylvania is one of the ten states whose legislatures have been asked to saddle an additional gasoline tax burden on motorists, the American Petroleum Institute reports.

In the first five weeks of 1935, bills were introduced into the assemblies of 10 states calling for increases in gas tax rates. These were Pennsylvania, New York, Nebraska, Oklahoma, North Dakota, Iowa, California Connecticut, Rhode Island and Alabama.

"However, motorists taxpayers are getting a break in some states," the Petroleum Institute adds. "The legislatures of Arizona, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, South Dakota, Wyoming, Utah and Idaho have under consideration proposals to reduce gasoline tax rates. In 16 states the legislatures have taken favorable action on memorials to congress calling for repeal of the federal gasoline tax."

But a government policy isn't hurting you much if you can't feel the hurt until you read the papers.

Finishing Takes Lead In Shelby League Thursday

Play Wonderful Brand Of Basketball To Trim Mechanicals, 40-24

OFFICE NOSES OUT BAR MILL

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 22.—Displaying a wonderful brand of basketball and a remarkable degree of team work, the Finishing cagers of the Shelby inter-department league looked like real champions Thursday evening when they trounced the Mechanical Five 40-24 in a crucial game. Just before this game the Office nosed out the Bar Mill 30-27.

The Office was just able to hold a slight edge throughout the game and pulled through three points to the good. It was a close game. The Office held a 10-9 lead in the first quarter and 17-14 at the half. They added a point to their lead in the ensuing period when the count was 26-22. The Office came through at the right moment and won the game 30-27. Kimes was the big gun in their attack with 10 points. Smith of the Bar Mill starred in the game with 16 points.

It took the defending champs and winners of the first half, Finishing, a little while to get started and clicking, but after that it was clear sailing. Their passing attack and fine degree of team work was a spectacle to behold. They work the ball in to score from under the hoops practically all night. It would be an injustice to say that one of their members performed better than the other. The team was a good clicking combination working towards one goal. Justine, Lasso and Ursu figured heavily in the attack. Tomei and Reese were best for the Mechanicals. The score was 9-4 for the Finishing in the first quarter and 18-12 at the half. In the ensuing period they clicked on all six to make the score 30-13 in their favor, and only lost one point in the final chapter.

The result places the Finishing in first place in the second half of the league. Saturday the team will journey to McKeesport to battle the league leaders of the McKeesport Tube Mill.

Games at the Shelby Saturday will have the Office playing the Mechanicals and the Bar Mill the Inspection.

Equipoise, with Sonny Workman up

A new picture from Santa Anita track at Arcadia, Cal., shows Equipoise, famous C. V. Whitney entry in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, Feb. 23, with Sonny Workman in the saddle. Equipoise was a favorite over Twenty Grand, Mate and other stars.

WHAT IMPRESSION DO YOU WISH TO CREATE? DRESS HAIR ACCORDINGLY,

Astrid Allwyn's hairdress suggests the patrician; right, a soft, demure charm.

What impression do you wish to create when you appear in public? You can make whatever sensation you wish by the way you dress your hair. These two pictures of pretty, blonde Astrid Allwyn, screen player, give you the idea. The one left is called "The Premiere", and suggests the dignified patrician; at right the tresses are drawn into a coil at the nape of the neck and relieved by a curled bang in front, suggestive of the naive charm of the Victorian era. Denis Phillips, film hairdressing expert, created the coiffures.

Advises Horse Whip

Miss Pearl L'Heureux

Miss Pearl L'Heureux, of the Wichita, Kas., police department, recently advised a group of club women to purchase a horse whip and lay it on when hubby spends the family savings on a chorus girl. "There being no law to handle such a situation," says Miss L'Heureux, "I can only advocate the purchase by the wife of a horse whip, with instructions to lay it on good and heavy, sparing blows to neither party." Miss L'Heureux also contends that heart balm is nothing but legalized blackmail.

When Man O'War Was Racing King, Taking First in 20 of 21 Starts

BACK IN 1919 and 1920, the race horse of the era was Man O'War, often called one of the greatest racers ever to carry a jockey. Man O'War, son of Fair Play and Mahubah, was one of the track's biggest money winners, and was practically unbeatable. In 1919, at the age of 2, he made 10 starts, taking nine first places and one second. In the following year he won all of his 11 races. For the two years he took 20 firsts of 21 races, winning a total of $249,465. The wonder horse was purchased as a yearling in 1918 at an auction for $5,000 by Samuel D. Riddle, prominent horseman.

Alberto Santos-Dumont

The Eiffel tower, Paris.

AN IMPORTANT but little remembered figure in the early history of air navigation was Alberto Santos-Dumont, French airship designer. Santos-Dumont, born in Sao Paulo, Brazil, in 1873, became interested as a boy in mechanics and engineering, following closely all the steps in the development of airships. He did much to perfect the navigable balloon with his experiments at the close of the nineteenth century. In 1898 he succeeded in making a flight with a gasoline engine and propeller attached to an elongated balloon. In 1901 he thrilled residents of Paris by making a flight around the Eiffel tower, one of most celebrated air feats up until that time. He crashed, however, in landing.

BERLIN—By the end of February 2,000 schools in Germany will be equipped with apparata for the showing of films. This is part of the plan of Herr Rust, the Reich education minister, to supplement book-learning by a form of instruction which appeals most vividly to children's imagination. He intends to have all the 50,000 schools throughout Germany equipped in the same way. Already 10 instructional films have been "shot" and 6,500 copies made. Eighty more of such films are planned for production this year.

'Prayer For Fire' Followed By One

(International News Service)

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 22.— "Elijah Prayed for Fire" was the text for the sermon of Rev. W A Clark at the Mt. Zion Baptist church here.

Four hours later the church choir loft was ablaze and only a passer-by's call to the fire department saved the edifice from destruction.

"I don't know whether there was any connection between the sermon and the fire," the minister said "but the fire department officers said they couldn't find out what started the blaze."
